MANY DEMANDS FOR PUBLICITY

Newspapers Overwhelmed by Organizations to Give Free Publicity to Their Demands

Never before in the history of American journalism have the newspapers of the United States been besieged so constantly by persons who want free space as is true today. War conditions have resulted in hundreds of new organizations which have shouldered all kinds of responsibilities and which are more or less dependent upon the newspapers for publicity. Many of these organizations are doing a most commendable work and many editors are willing to give them space for what news they have, but the press matter comes to them in such shape that it cannot be used without rewriting.

Hugh M. Thomson, editor and manager of the Ridgway (Pa.) Publishing Company, publishers of the Ridgway Daily Record and the Ridgway Advocate, was recently asked by "The Editor and Publisher" to save all of the requests for publicity which he received in one week. Information was wanted about the kind and quantity of matter that was being sent to what might be called small-town daily newspapers.

Editor Regarded as Easy

Mr. Thomson mailed to "The Editor and Publisher" seven and one-fourth pounds of matter. This included material from the various Federal Government departments and from the many different State bureaus which maintain publicity divisions, from educational institutions, and from hundreds of organizations attempting to do everything imaginable. The matter varied in length from ten lines to twenty pages. The editor in many cases was asked to "insert in full and please send us marked copy."

Mr. Thomson has estimated that he receives about 377 pounds of publicity matter a year. If each of the 2,500 papers in this country received the same amount only this totals 942,500 pounds, or 471 1/4 tons a year.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The members of Company C are enjoying the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool these hot days. Any man in uniform is welcome at the building and to the use of the privileges.

Forty poor boys from Boston enjoy the privileges of the Association once each week. A swim, games, a substantial luncheon, and moving pictures form the entertainment. Groups of ladies look after the luncheon, while gifts from Newton people take care of the expense. The lunches have been in charge of Miss Emma Page, Mrs. H. W. Bascom, Mrs. D. W. Anders, Mrs. A. W. Fairweather, and Mrs. A. E. Whitney. The committee would like volunteers for Aug. 15th and 27th.

MIDSUMMER MEETING

Aldermen Hold Many Hearings and Add Many Dollars to Tax Levy

For a mid summer meeting considerable business was transacted Monday night at an adjourned session of the board of aldermen. Four aldermen, Messrs. Flitts, Harriman, Hollis and Tuttle were absent and President Early was in the chair.

Many routine hearings were held. The Telephone Co. asked for underground conduits in Franklin street, the Edison Co. for underground in Walnut park and for poles on Crafts street, the latter being opposed by Mr. J. B. Robson. J. V. Monaghan's Sons' petition to keep gasoline at 5

Alburt street was strongly opposed by Mrs. Colby and Mrs. Hammond. The Capitol Oil Co. of Salem wanted to sell gasoline at the corner of Washington and Charlesbank road in Newton and on Commonwealth avenue at Parkway road, ward 6. The Newton location was favored by Mrs. H. A. Harwood and a written protest was filed by others interested. The Bay State Development Co. wanted to sell gasoline on Old Colony road and a representative of the company appeared in favor. Hearings on the widening of Centre street, Newton Centre, and for concrete sidewalks on Broadway were unopposed and the widening of Centre street was subsequently ordered.

Mayor Childs sent in a large number of recommendations, including the appointment of Florence McCarthy as a public weigher, $200 additional for spraying private gardens, $100 for better lighting in the West Newton fire station, $1400 for work on approaches to railroad bridges in Waban and Woodland, $515 for policing bridges while work was in progress, that $4600 be authorized for new sanitary station at Newton Highlands and for Allison park bath house, be made available for immediate use, and for $200 for city's share of apportionment cost of the work on the Boylston street bridge, all of which with the exception of work in the West Newton engine house were later approved by the board.

The Street Commissioner reported Norwood avenue constructed at a cost of $1071.82, and the City Clerk submitted the jury list for the ensuing year.

There was some discussion over the recommendation of the Chief of Police that the junk license of Morris Greenwald be revoked in consequence of a recent conviction in the police court of receiving stolen property. Alderman Murphy, who seems to specialize in any matter affecting Nonantum, even in police convictions, objected to revocation without giving a hearing, saying that Greenwald had pleaded not guilty and had appealed from the sentence imposed by the local court. Alderman Goodwin suggested a suspension of the license, but Alderman Murphy said the board had no right to take such action. Alderman Forkall asked if this was a first offense but did not receive any reply. The board was evidently affected by the heat for it unanimously rejected the order of revocation and later referred the matter to the License committee.

Petitions for numerous private garages were granted and these petitions received, W. L. McKeezie for wagon licenses, Giuseppe Alcasandroni for common victualer license at Thompsonville, Edison Co. for attachments on Somerset road and Walnut street, W. M. Paxton for sewers in Montvale road and Hobart road, for the laying out of Farlow road, Franklin street and Ricker road under the betterment law, for street sprinkling on Waban Hill road and Beech street, for sidewalk on Ricker road, claims of J. H. Wellman and Dr. F. S. Keith and application of W. H. Bagley for soldier's relief. M. J. Hoban was granted $10 a month Soldier's relief. On recommendations of the Finance committee $400 was authorized for plans for a new building for the Forestry Department at Crafts street. $2000 was rescinded from the appropriation for Garbage collection, and $25,000 in serial bonds authorized for work on bridges ordered by the County Commissioners.

On motion of Alderman Whidden the Chief of Police was asked to report next month on the work of his department since May 1 and to give details regarding the Newton Constabulary.

Alderman Blake reported that the committee on billboards had been before the Constitutional Convention had been made. He urged every one and that an adverse committee report interested to bring all the influence possible to bear on members of the convention on this matter.

Alderman Cole reported that the committee on street railway fares had done all it could on the matter before the public Service Commission and believed that the compromise adopted last week was as good a solution as could have been expected.

The board adjourned until Sept. 10 at 9.15 P. M.

Many of the cultivators of War Gardens in Newton in their efforts to combat the blight and the white lice have gone to the Forestry Department to purchase some "nicotine solution."

The Forestry Department is glad to co-operate with our food producers in their fight to save the crops, but as it has no supply of containers to provide for these sales of small quantities of the "nicotine solution," respectfully requests purchasers to bring small bottles when coming for the insecticide.

COPELY THEATRE—"The Man Who Stayed at Home" still continues to gain in popularity at the Copley, where the Henry Jewett Players are now on their ninth week of thrills and laughter with this stirring war play, and are daily playing to crowded houses. Full to the brim with tense situations and sympathetic appeal, it retains the refreshing lightness of comedy, carefully balancing its rapid-fire thrills with volleys of mirth. The play, dealing with the problems of enlistment and espionage, presents topics of peculiar interest to us all and discloses the condition of false security that existed in England during the early months of the war.

SMILE

Start at morn with smiles of sunshine,
Let them stretch across the day;
Give a smile to light the shadows,
Brighten up the lowly way;
Smile for cheer when storms would frighten;
Smile for calm when lightnings lash;
Smile for peace 'mid raging torrents;
Smile for songs when thunders crash.

Smile for love for weary mortals,
Give the smile that speaks the heart;
Smile when life brings to you problems;
Smile when struggles tread the mart;
Smile when Time rolls up your burdens,
Smiles will make the bearing sweet;
Smile when sacrifice is service;
Smile when trials trip your feet.
If you smile 'mid all the hardships

That this world may bring to you,
If you smile when just the smiling
Means a summer day's deep blue,
Then, some day, you'll hear a singing
When you raise up Duty's cup.
Aid you'll find it full of blessings
That your smiling has filled up!

—WILBUR THEATRE—At Ye Wilbur Theatre "Oh, Boy," the fourth New York Prince Theatre musical comedy, was presented last Wednesday night by F. Ray Constock and William Elliott to a large and distinctly fashionable audience. The inaugural night was known as "North Shore Night." The predecessors of "Oh, Boy"—"Nobody Home" and "Very Good Eddie"—also opened the past two seasons at Ye Wilbur Theatre with long and popular runs and "Oh, Boy" is the best of all. The music by Jerome Kern is of the style now in vogue that has the haunting quality that makes for instant popularity and the libretto by Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse has a sufficient story in which humor and romance are delightfully blended to hold the piece together. The lyrics too, are charming. It is these qualities in addition to the grace and youthfulness of the young ladies of the company, tasteful dresses and pretty stage pictures that make "Oh, Boy" such a distinct success at Ye Wilbur Theatre, Boston.

LETTER FROM PARIS

Chestnut Hill Youth Writes of Conditions Abroad

Paris, July 15, 1917.

Dear Father and Mother:—

Here I am in Paris for a nine day course. The events since my last to you from La Panne are as follows.

We left La Panne a sunny and Sunday morning towards the end of June and after four hours march arrived at our cantonment, a pretty Flemish farm some fifteen miles back of the lines.

Here we rested three days, then the battery was made into two squadrons, to work in turns of eight days each, preparing our position at the front.

As the country there is quite flat and as the position are within easy distance of the guns of the ever watchful Bosche, we could work only at night time for fear of being observed.

Thus for eight nights we toiled at such pleasant tasks as digging gun emplacements, making masks, mixing cement, etc. Most of the time Bosche shells were passing over our heads searching out batteries here and there.

Occasionally a mitrailleuse bullet which had missed its mark would zip past, for we were working some 50 metres behind the front line trenches with the Bosches only 1200 metres away.

The country in these parts is, as I have said, very flat. At one time it was the richest soil in all Belgium and valuable accordingly for crops, but the inundations of the early years of the war have ruined the soil. Now nothing but coarse swamp grass, reeds, etc. grow there. The soil is clay and when sun baked is very hard, but once wet by a gentle rain or even a heavy dew, forms one of the most damnable kinds of sticky paste you can imagine. A cheerful outlook for the winter. Also the brand of mosquitoes grown in that neighborhood is not ordinary. I was none too sorry when the C. told me I was to go to Paris for nine days. I hadn't asked for any longer but accepted the offer none the less, and jumping aboard a train de permissionnaires, I arrived here ten hours later.

Yesterday was July 14th—at first I thought I would pass up the parade and have a good sleep. Then I thought I had better see all that was to be seen, so I dashed off to a point of vantage, and though 'twas early I found some several million people there before me. However, I haven't been through base ball and foot ball crowds for nothing and in a very few minutes found myself at the very front.

The parade was made up of representative battalions from regiments which had done specially good work during the war and at the head of all came the Foreign Legion, five times cited in the ordre du jour; the 152d de ligne came next and after that I lost count there were so many. Every separate group, headed by a much battered scarred flag was cheered by the crowd; people wept out of pure emotion and excitement, others fainted, for 'twas very warm.

The whole second half of the parade was made up of Chasseurs Alpins and a more splendid collection of men I never hope to see. They were headed by their trompettes blowing the various aires du marche and as they marched by the crowds went quite mad. The whole performance lasted an hour and a half, after which I went back to the hotel and had a bath.

I am here three more days and will then return to the front in time for the summer show, for I understand that the Huns are to be entertained during the next few weeks. Perhaps even, they are intending to do some entertaining on their own account.

EDWARD.

1912 William J. O'Donnell,

There are some men who believe that there is available one opportunity to stop at least a large part of the waste every year of pulp supplies. They claim that $120,000,000 is wasted each year on containers of wood and fibre, which might much better be ground into pulp for paper, so far as continuous usefulness goes, and that this can be thrown away after completing a single trip.

This waste has grown tremendously in the past few years. The volume it now has assumed may be shown clearly when one takes into consideration the exports of paper and pulpwood from Canada. For the year ending in July, 1916, $21,678,868 worth of paper and $40,856,266 worth of pulp and wood were exported. Of these totals the United States received eighty-eight percent of the paper and eighty-seven percent of the pulp. The point of interest, however, is that there was spent for boxes and fibre containers—all thrown away after one trip—$120,000,000 or roughly twice the value of all the Canadian paper and pulp exports. This is worthy of the most careful consideration, that the United States throws away each year on containers twice as much as the value of all exports of one of the Dominion's leading industries.

It has been said by William G. Groom, traffic manager of the Whitaker Paper Company (in an address before the Industrial Club of Covington, Ky.) that a single Sunday edition of one of our New York newspapers consumes the pulp from fifteen acres of forest trees or 780 acres of trees for one year's Sunday editions of only one of the great newspapers. Probably the same paper would require about one-fourth as much for its daily editions on the average, and if this be so then in one year nearly 2000 acres of forest trees would have to be cut down to supply the pulp to meet the needs of a single newspaper of the largest circulation.

With many thousands of newspapers to be provided for and with the other enormous demands for pulp and paper it would seem indisputable that anything that will help conserve the supply should be adopted, if it is economical and practical.

One of the public container would largely eliminate the waste on one-trip boxes. It could be used over and over, and, if strongly built, surely would save the railroads hundreds of thousands of dollars annually; paid out for damages and for goods stolen from freight cars and at the terminals, as well as conserve the forest supply.

It would make it possible to pack down the car space much larger than the freight car. It is not possible with the fragile containers of thin wood and fibre. These cannot be piled one on top of the other without breakage.

Another viewpoint from which to obtain an idea of how much effect the elimination of the one-trip containers mean to the public is to remember that the total value of all the pulp and fibre used in the United States is $300,000,000 and that one-half, nearly is thrown away after brief usefulness. There are those who believe that this waste should be stopped.

One packing case good for say 100 trips should be economy in the end even for the packer, when contrasted with the 100 cases now used for 100 trips. In the end, one-half of the pulp supply could be conserved and saving should lower the price at once, and permanently. No other argument seems possible to those who have studied it.

There is still another great benefit to be considered in this connection, say experts, and that is that by enabling the fuller loading of box freight cars the national containers will release thousands of cars for relieving the congestion.

If only ten percent larger loads were carried it would mean 255,000 more cars would be released and $40,000,000 in actual operating expenses would be saved the railroads every year. At present only fifty-five percent of box-car space is used on the average, so that the use of several times the present load would be practicable with these of containers capable of being packed properly.

Naturally, also, the releasing of cars and the more expeditious handling of freight the country over would be of tremendous advantage to every business man and, presumably, would make for lower prices on many things.

ADVICE TO SOLDIERS

There has been appointed by the Newton Committee on Public Safety a new Committee to be composed of lawyers for the purpose of giving free legal advice and assistance to men who have entered the army or the navy from Newton and also to give such legal advice as their people at home may desire after they have left for the front.

George F. Wales of Newton Centre is Chairman of this Committee on Legal Advice. Among men who have already volunteered for service are the following:

Thomas W. Proctor
Ellas B. Bishop
James A. Lowell
A. T. Beatey
Harry D. Clout
A. Leslie Harwood, Jr.
J. Weston Allen
Thomas Weston, Jr.
Samuel D. Elmore.

Other lawyers who are willing to volunteer for this work are requested to send their names to the Public Safety Committee, 890 Washington Street, Newtonville.

It will not be necessary for persons desiring advice to come to the office of the Safety Committee. They may write in stating the nature of the services required and counsel will be assigned from the volunteers.

The Chairman of the General Committee is at the office at Newtonville every morning at 8.15 for an hour and the office will be open with a lawyer in attendance on Friday evening, August 3rd, and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, August 6th, 7th and 8th. If necessity warrants, arrangements will be made for keeping the office open regularly evenings.

It should be clearly understood that the purpose of this Committee is not to assist men in procuring exemption but that it is to give them on the part of lawyers who are not going into service now to render substantial aid and assistance to fighting men and their families.

FAREWELL DANCE

Newton Constabulary are Hosts to Officers and Men of Co. C.

A farewell banquet and dance was tendered the officers and men of Company C on Wednesday evening by the Newton Constabulary. The matter was first suggested late last week and it speaks volumes for the energy and efficiency of the Constabulary that the whole affair was such a success in so short a time.

The banquet was served to the Company at their camp on Claffin Field in place of their usual ration on Wednesday evening. This affair was most informal, with only a few invited guests.

At eight o'clock the Company marched to the State Armory at West Newton, followed by the Newton Constabulary under direction of its chief, General James G. White. Mayor Childs welcomed the men in his usual eloquent manner and Capt. Cormerais responded for the Company.

An entertainment consisting of music by Knights Orchestra, singing by Miss Marie Sladen, contralto, Mrs. H. D. Cormerais, soprano, piano, songs and dances by Miss Maxine Brown of the Liberty Players, and a recitation of "Your Flag and My Flag" by Miss Vesta M. Goodwin.

Picked squads from Company C gave exhibition drills which were received with great enthusiasm. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, the floor being under the direction of Corp. Francis Newhall, assisted by Sergt. Stephen H. Whidden, Sergt. A. C. Blount, Jr., Lieut. H. Belden Sly, Lieut. H. P. Curtis, Sergt. Wm. D. Rising, Lieut. E. E. Forknall, Lieut. C. W. Fulton and Lieut. Geo. C. Frodich. General James G. White was chairman of the Reception Committee and was assisted by Capt. W. M. Dudley, Capt. C. L. Eddy, and Lieut. Fred H. Baird.

The affair was in the hands of a capable committee consisting of Messrs. C. H. Goodwin, Jr., W. N. Dudley, Geo. C. Frodich, L. D. MacNutt, C. L. Eddy, Wm. F. Garcelon, J. R. Chandler, and E. O. Gruener.

Among the invited guests were Mayor Childs, Col. W. W. Stover, Major Francis Meredith, Capt. D. W. Wood, Capt. S. E. Brown, Chaplain Lyman Rollins, Lieut. E. J. Golding, Adj.-General Jesse F. Stevens, Col. Geo. H. Benyon, Capt. J. C. DeMille, Major Fred P. Barnes, A. T. Beatey, Arthur R. Nagle, Morton E. Cobb, James C. Irwin, J. Dwight Howard, Homer L. Bigelow, and Elias B. Bishop.

POLICE NOTES

George West, alias Westy, 24 years old and living on Newell road, Auburndale, was in court Tuesday on two charges of larceny. Inspector Frank B. Fletcher prosecuted the case. It is claimed that Westy represented himself to be an agent of the Colonial Circulating Company, collected money for magazine subscriptions and did not forward the magazines. He was convicted, sentenced to the Concord Reformatory, and then sentence was suspended until February 3 with the proviso that restitution be made.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The western plains have been brought to our very doors this week in the presentation by the Liberty Players of "In Wyoming" the Willard Mack comedy drama of life on the frontier. The story proved interesting throughout and the author wisely incorporated many amusing situations that afforded many hearty laughs. For the coming week the Plymouth Theatre success "Under Cover" will be offered.

NEWTON POLICE WIN

The base ball nine of the Police Department journeyed to Manchester, N. H., on Tuesday for a game of ball with the police of that city, the champions of New Hampshire. The home team were unable to solve the pitching of Haley and were easily beaten by the score of 7 to 2.

SUMMER SCHOOL CLOSSES

Many Useful Studies Taught at Stearns School this Season

Friday, August third, saw the close of the 1917 session of the Stearns Summer School.

Few people in Newton realize the nature and amount of work done every summer in this school. The object is two-fold: first to keep busy many children who otherwise would be idle in a thickly populated section of the city and second to teach them to be skillful workers with their hands. These two objects are attained in the following ways.

There are six departments: Sloyd or Manual Training, Printing, Knitting and Crocheting, Kindergarten, Primary, Cooking and Sewing. Twenty-one teachers and a Principal are employed during the session, men and women who are experts in the various lines. There are no frills or fancy ideas taught but everything is on a most practical basis.

In the Sewing department alone 130 articles were made, showing 8 different kinds, aprons, bloomers, dresses, skirts, night gowns, petticoats and so on. In the Knitting and Crocheting department 104 articles were made such as slippers, bags, sweaters, shawls and jackets. In the Sloyd section many useful and some play pieces were made. The cooking department attempts to teach the making of dishes which are common to the pupils' homes; this year economy in the use of materials was emphasized. 78 were found physically disqualified and the examinations of 9 were postponed, 36 aliens were also discharged, 2 clergymen were exempted, and 28 were said to be already serving in the U. S. army. 11 men were transferred to other districts for examination, leaving 46 men who were found qualified and 70 who were physically qualified and who had filed claims for exemption.

One man, William Cunningham McLeish of Nonantum square, Newton, had conscientious scruples against entering the army and said he would rather take poison than shed human blood. He was willing, it is said, to serve in the ambulance corps, dig trenches, or do anything no matter how dangerous to himself rather than kill anyone. McLeish is a Socialist.

One Armenian who had filed his first papers for naturalization, had evidently got cold feet, for it was impossible for the physicians to make him understand English, altho he must have had some knowledge of the language before he could file such papers. Before the doctors were thru with him, he developed a bad case of deafness, and his standing in the draft is at present, most uncertain.

The following men have been passed as qualified for military service:

288 Ernest J. Chadd, 276 Church	1
428 Arthur R. Stubbs, 80 Jewett	2

TO HELP THE BOYS

A committee representing the various fraternal organizations of the city has been appointed to raise money to supply the Newton members in the various military organizations with such luxuries as tobacco, candy, etc. It consists of M. J. Barry of Newton Centre, chairman, representing the Knights of Columbus, Mayor Edwin O. Childs, representing the Masons and Elks, Miss Pittfield of the Rebekahs, Mr. Stanton of Needham, representing the Knights of Pythias, and Mr. Thomas C. Clay representing the Odd Fellows.

This committee has arranged for a meeting at Norumbega Park on Sunday afternoon, August 26, which will be addressed by noted speakers and at which there will be some good music. Details will be announced later.

MANY MEN REJECTED

Local Board Finds Many Physically Disqualified in its First Call

The Local Exemption board for the city of Newton consisting of Judge John C. Kennedy, Alderman Bernard Early, and Medical Examiner George L. West have had their hands full the past week in obtaining the quota of 147 assigned this city for the military draft. Judge Kennedy was unable to stand the pace and was forced to give up the work on Tuesday on account of ill health. The board had called 300 young men for physical examination, taking 100 each on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. Dr. West had the assistance of ten or a dozen of his fellow physicians at the examinations and even at that it was a long, tedious task to make the examination required by the rules and regulations of the War Department. Each man as he entered the examination room was stripped naked and carefully examined by different physicians for heart, lungs, eyes, ears, and all the other tests required. These reports were then handed to the Local Board for decision as to eligibility. Claims for discharge from service on the part of all those who passed physically had to be passed upon by the Board and in this respect there has been considerable delay.

Of the 300 men called for examination, 20 did not appear and under the rules of the War Department they will be automatically placed in the service. 78 were found physically disqualified and the examinations of 9 were postponed, 36 aliens were also discharged, 2 clergymen were exempted, and 28 were said to be already serving in the U. S. army. 11 men were transferred to other districts for examination, leaving 46 men who were found qualified and 70 who were physically qualified and who had filed claims for exemption.

One man, William Cunningham McLeish of Nonantum square, Newton, had conscientious scruples against entering the army and said he would rather take poison than shed human blood. He was willing, it is said, to serve in the ambulance corps, dig trenches, or do anything no matter how dangerous to himself rather than kill anyone. McLeish is a Socialist.

EDITORIAL

The rules and regulations of the War Department governing the drafting of our young men for military service are carefully and wonderfully made. The amount of detail required which seems absolutely needless cannot be realized until one comes in actual contact with the regulations. Claims for exemptions must be acknowledged before a Notary Public, for instance, although for all practical purposes, the acknowledgment before a justice of the peace would seem to answer every reasonable requirement, and justices are far more numerous than notaries. The call to the men to appear for examination must also be signed in person by the chairman and clerk of the exemption board, and when the chairman is ill, as in the case in Newton, the third member of the board is not allowed to sign even as an "acting chairman," thus putting considerable unnecessary labor on a man physically unfit. Another phase is indicated in the case of one young man who tried to enter the First Corps of Cadets only to be disqualified on account of varicose veins, and who has just been passed by the local physicians, and will now enter the service as a conscript.

In addition to the enormous amount of detail required by the regulations, the local boards are expected to render this service without payment for their own time and trouble, and are not even given money for the large amount of stenographic and clerical work which is entailed. Uncle Sam's War Department evidently has an idea that "patriotism" covers a multitude of details.

We print this week an article on the proposed new study on training in citizenship to be included in the future in our school curriculum. The subject is one that deserves careful study and consideration, and, if well taught to our boys and girls, should yield splendid results in the future in making better men and women.

Farewell and best wishes are extended to the officers and men of our local Company of Militia in their departure for training camp duty. May every man return to his home after an honorable and efficient service.

Company C by any other name will still be Company C to Newton people.

A most welcome rain.

COPLEY THEATRE—A tenth big week is assured at the Copley, where the Henry Jewett Players continue in their record success "The Man Who Stayed at Home," the play which has taken London and New York by storm and is meeting with unparalleled enthusiasm in Boston. It transports the audience from convulsions of laughter to tense, breathless silence in rapid sequence and is particularly timely at this present crisis in our national affairs. Disclosing as it does problems of vital importance such as espionage and enlistments, it accurately depicts the false sense of security felt in England during the early days of the war, and which had much to do with the costly blunders of the first year.

THE CAMP CLEVELAND AT MARION

Dr. Michael Chirurg of Newton Centre, who is stopping with his family at the Hotel Suppican, Marion, Massachusetts, called, on Monday noon, on Commandant W. Huston Lillard, who is in charge of the U. S. Junior Naval Reserve, at Camp Cleveland, Marion, Massachusetts, composed of one hundred and fifty boys, representing nearly every state in the Union.

The boys looked healthy and sturdy, all browned up from the outdoor life. The messhall, where the boys were eating dinner at the time of the visit, is a large, well-ventilated room. The food which the boys were eating and of which Dr. Chirurg was invited by the Commandant to partake, was excellently cooked—meat, new cabbage and other wholesome food.

The purpose of Camp Cleveland is to train boys who are under the age of enlistment but who wish to lose no time in preparing themselves for more efficient service, whether in war or peace. Under strict military discipline the boys are given the elementary lessons of the soldier and sailor. As a unit in the Naval Reserve, the Camp is doing what it can to interest the boys in the Navy and Merchant Marine. It is assumed that such interest, whether it leads to personal service or not, will be of great value to the nation in the problem of the near future. Dr. Chirurg is full of hearty praise of the Camp and believes that this course of training will, no doubt, develop self-discipline, alertness and manliness.

Sergeant McClintock, who has seen service in France, was decorated for bravery, wounded, invalided home and is now endeavoring to get a commission in our army. A commission in the Canadian army awaits him if he returns to join his old command. In the first and second articles he graphically describes his training, his trip to France and the elaborate preparations made for a bomb raid on the German trenches.

As we climbed out of the shelter of our trenches for my first—and, perhaps, my last, I thought—adventure in No Man's Land the word was passed: "Over the top and give 'em hell!" That is the British Tommies' battle cry as they charge the enemy, and it has often sounded up and down those long lines in western France as the British, Canadian and Australian soldiers go out to the fight and the death.

We were divided into six parties of ten men, each party having separate duties to perform. We crouched forward, moving slowly in single file, stumbling into shell holes and over dead men—some very long dead—and managing to keep in touch with each other though the machine gun bullets began to drop men almost immediately. Once we were started we were neither fearful nor rattled. We had been drilled so long and so carefully that each man knew just what he was to do, and he kept right on doing it unless he got hit. To me it seemed the ground was moving back under me. The first ten yards were the toughest. The thing was perfectly organized. Our first party of ten was composed of signallers. They were paying out wires and carrying telephones to be used during the fifteen minutes of our stay in the German trenches in communicating with our battalion headquarters. A telephone code had been arranged, using the names of our commanding officers as symbols. "Rexford 1" meant "First prisoners being sent back;" "Rexford 2" meant "Our first wounded being sent over;" "Rexford 3" meant "We have entered German trench." The code was very complete, and the signallers had been drilled in it for a week. In case the telephone wires were cut, the signallers were to send messages back by the use of rifle grenades. These are rifle projectiles which carry little metal cylinders to contain written messages and which burst into flame when they strike the earth, so that they can be easily found at night. The officer in charge of the signallers was to remain at the point of entrance, with his eyes on his watch. It was his duty to sound a warning signal five minutes before the end of our time in the German trenches.

The leader of every party of ten also had a whistle with which to repeat the warning blast and then the final blast, when each man was to drop everything and get back of our artillery fire. We were not to leave any dead or wounded in the German trench on account of the information which the Germans might thus obtain. Before starting on the raid we had removed all marks from our persons. Except for the signallers, each party of ten was similarly organized. First, there were two bayonet men, each with an electric flashlight attached to his rifle, so as to give light for the direction of a bayonet thrust and controlled by a button at the left hand grasp of the rifle. Besides his rifle, all of these men carried six or eight Mills No. 5 hand grenades, weighing from a pound and five ounces to a pound and seven ounces each.

The Lineup.

They are the same shape as a turkey egg and a little larger. Upon withdrawing the firing pin a lever sets a four second fuse going. One of these grenades will clean out anything living in a ten foot trench section. It will also kill the man who is throwing it if he holds it more than four seconds after he has pulled the pin. The third man of each ten was an expert bomb thrower, equipped as lightly as possible to give him freedom of action. He carried a few bombs himself, but the main supply was carried by the fourth man, who was not to throw any unless the third man became a casualty, in which case No. 4 was to take his place. The third man also carried a knob kerrie, a heavy bludgeon to be used in whacking an enemy over the head. Ours were made by fastening heavy steel nuts on a stout stick of wood, a very businesslike contrivance. The fourth man, or bomb carrier, besides having a large supply of Mills grenades, had smoke bombs, to be used in smoking the Germans out of dugouts and later, if necessary, in covering our retreat, and also fume bombs. The latter are very dangerous to handle. They contain a mixture of petrol and phosphorus and weigh three pounds each. On exploding they release a liquid fire which will burn through steel.

The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth in the line were called utility men. They were to take the places of any of the first four who might become casualties. In addition they carried two Stokes gun bombs each. These weigh nine pounds apiece, have six second fuses and can be used in wrecking dugouts. The ninth and tenth men were sappers, carrying slabs of gun-cotton and several hundred yards of instantaneous fuse. This explosive is used in demolishing machine gun emplacements and mine saps. The sappers were to lay their charges while we were at work in the trenches and explode them as soon as our party was far enough out on the return journey to be safe from this danger. In addition to these parties of ten there were three of us who carried bombs and had orders to keep near the three officers, to take the place of any one of them that might go down and meanwhile to use our own judgment about helping the jolly old party along. I was assigned one of the three.

In addition to the raiding party proper there was a relay call across No Man's Land at ten paces interval, making a chain to show us our way back, to assist the wounded and, in case of opportunity or necessity, to reinforce us. They were ordered not to leave their positions when we began to come back until the last man of our party had been accounted for. The final section of our entourage was composed of twelve stretcher bearers, who had been specially trained with us, so that they would be familiar with the trench section which we were to raid.

The Raid and Its Result.

There were two things which made it possible for our raiding party to get started across No Man's Land. One was the momentary quickening of the blood which follows a big and unaccustomed dose of rum, and the other was a sort of subconscious, mechanical confidence in our undertaking, which was a result of the scores of times we had gone through every prearranged movement in our practice duplicate German trenches behind our lines. Without either of those influences we simply could not have left the shelter and faced what was before us.

We Were Crawling About on All Fours.

An intensified bombardment from our guns began just as soon as we had climbed "over the top" and were lining up for the journey across. "Lining up" is not just a suitable term. We were crawling about on all fours just far enough out in No Man's Land to be under the edge of the German shell fire and taking what shelter we could in shell holes while our leaders picked the way to start across. The extra heavy bombardment had warned the Germans that something was about to happen. They sent up star shells and "S O S" signals until there was a glare over the torn earth like that which you see at the grand finish of a night fireworks display, and meanwhile they sprayed No Man's Land with streams of machine gun fire. In the face of that we started.

It would be absurd to say that we were not frightened. Thinking men could not help but be afraid. If we were pallid, which undoubtedly we were, the black upon our faces hid it, but our fear struck voices were not disguised. They trembled and our teeth chattered.

We sneaked out single file, making our way from shell hole to shell hole, nearly all the time on all fours, crawling quickly over the flat places between this small shelter. The Germans had not sighted us, but they were squirting machine gun bullets all over the place promiscuously, like a man watering a lawn with a garden hose, and they were bound to get some of us. Behind me I heard cries of pain and groans, but it made little impression on my benumbed intelligence from the mere fact that whatever had happened had happened to one of the other sections of ten and not to my own. It seemed, some way or other, no affair to concern me. Then a man in front of me doubled up suddenly and rolled into a shell hole. That simply made me remember very clearly that I was not to stop on account of it. It was some one else's business to pick that man up. Next, according to the queer psychology of battle, I began to lose my sensation of fear and nervousness. After I saw a second man go down I gave my attention principally to a consideration of the irregularities of the German parapet ahead of us, picking out the spot where we were to enter the trench. It seems silly to say it, but I seemed to get some sort of satisfaction out of the realization that we had lost the percentage which we might be expected to lose going over. Now, it seemed, the rest of us were safe until we should reach the next phase of our undertaking. I heard directions given, and I gave some myself. My voice was firm. It surprised me, and I felt almost calm. Our artillery had so torn up the German barb wire that it gave us no trouble at all. We walked through it with only a few scratches. When we reached the low sandbag parapet of the enemy trench we tossed in a few bombs and followed them right over as soon as they had exploded. There wasn't a German in sight. They were all in their dugouts. But we knew pretty well where every dugout was located, and we rushed for the entrances with our bombs. Everything seemed to be going just as we had expected it to go. Two Germans ran plump into me as I was rounding a ditch angle with a bomb in my hand. They had their hands up, and each of them yelled: "Mercy, kamerad!"

I passed them back, to be sent to the rear, and the man who received them from me chuckled and told them to move lively. The German trenches were practically just as we had expected to find them, according to our sample. They were so nearly similar to the duplicate section in which we had practiced that we had no trouble finding our way in them. I was just thinking that really the only tough part of the job remaining would be getting back across No Man's Land when it seemed that the whole earth behind me rose in the air. For a moment I was stunned and half blinded by dirt blown into my face. When I was able to see I discovered that all which lay behind me was a mass of upturned earth and rock, with here and there a man shaking himself or scrambling out of it or lying still.

Just two minutes after we went into their trench the Germans had exploded a mine under their parapet. I have always believed that in some way or another they had learned what spot we were to raid and had prepared for us. Whether that's true or not, one thing is certain—that mine blew our organization, as we would say in Kentucky, "plumb to h—!" And it killed or disabled more than half of our party.

Great Confusion.

There was much confusion among those of us who remained on our feet. Some one gave an order to retire, and some one countermanded it. More Germans came out of their dugouts, but instead of surrendering as per our original schedule they threw bombs among us. It became apparent that we would be killed or captured if we stuck there and that we wouldn't get any more prisoners. I looked at my wrist watch and saw that there remained but five minutes more of the time which had been allotted for our stay in the trench, so I blew my whistle and started back. I had seen Private Green (No. 177,250) knocked down by a bomb in the next section, and I picked him up and carried him out over the wrecked parapet. I took shelter with him in the first shell hole, but I found that he was dead and left him there. A few yards farther back toward our line I found Lance Corporal Glass in a shell hole with part of his hip shot away. He said he thought he could get back if I helped him, and I started with him. Private Hunter, who had been in a neighboring shell hole, came to our assistance, and between us Hunter and I got Glass to our front trench.

We found them lining up the survivors of our party for a roll call. That showed so many missing that Major Lewis, formerly of the Montreal Star, called for volunteers to go out in No Man's Land and try to find some of our men. Corporal Charleson, Private Saunders and I went out. We brought in two wounded, and we saw a number of dead, but on account of their blackened faces were unable to recognize them. The scouts later brought in several bodies.

Of the sixty odd men who had started in our party forty-three were found to be casualties—killed, wounded or missing. The missing list was the longest. The names of those men were marked "m. b. k." (missing; believed killed) on our rolls. I have learned since that some few of them have been reported through Switzerland as prisoners of war in Germany, but most of them are now officially listed as dead.

All of the survivors of the raiding party were sent twenty miles to the rear at 7 o'clock, and the noncommissioned officers were ordered to make reports in writing concerning the entire raid. I never slept more than an hour at a time for several days and nights. I would doze off from sheer exhaustion and then suddenly find myself sitting straight up, scared half to death all over again.

There may be soldiers who won't get scared when they know they are in danger or even when people are being killed right around them, but I'm not one of them. And I've never met any of them yet. I know a boy who won the military cross in the battle of the Somme, and I saw him on his knees before his platoon commander, shamelessly crying he was a coward and begging to be left behind, just when the order to advance was given.

In this war in every offensive, big or small, the man who has been trained to throw a bomb thirty yards is busier and more important than the fellow with the modern rifle, which will shoot a mile and a half and make a hole through a house. In a good many surprising ways this war has carried us back to first principles. I remember a crusader's mace which I once saw in the British museum that would make a bang up knob kerrie, much better than the kind with which they arm our No. 4 men in a raiding section. It had a round iron head, with spikes all over it. I wonder that they haven't started a factory to turn them out.

Tricks of Bombing.

When the Canadians first introduced bombing the bombs were improvised out of mess tins, the fuses were cut according to the taste and judgment of the individual bomber, and just when the bomb would explode was more or less problematical. Frequently the Germans have tossed our bombs back into our trenches before they went off. That was dangerous and irritating. They can't do that with a Mills grenade or any of the improved factory made bombs, because the men know just how they are timed and are trained to know just how to throw them. Then the Germans used to work a little bomb trick of their own. They learned that our scouts and raiders were all anxious to get a German helmet as a souvenir. They'd put helmets on the ground in No Man's Land or in an advanced trench with bombs under them. In several cases men looking for souvenirs suddenly became mere memories themselves.

In several raids when bombing was new the Canadians worked a trick on the Germans with extensively fatal effect. They tossed bombs into the German trenches with six inch fuses attached. To the Germans they looked just like the other bombs we had been using, and, in fact, they were—all but the fuses. Instead of having failed to continue burning, as the Germans thought, those fuses had never been lighted. They were instantaneous fuses. The ignition spark will travel through an instantaneous fuse at the rate of thirty yards a second. A German would pick up one of these bombs, select the spot where he intended to blow up a few of us with our own ammunition and then light the fuse. After that there had to be a new man in his place. The bomb would explode instantly the long fuse was ignited.

The next day when I got up after this disastrous raid my bunkie said: "Something sure raised h— with our calculations."

"As those automatic self cocking revolvers did with a Kentucky wedding when some one made a remark reflecting on the bride," I replied.

The fourth article of this remarkable personal narrative will appear soon. It is entitled:

Sergeant McClintock takes part in the greatest of all battles and tells of the hell of it. "The front in Belgium was really a rest sector in comparison with it," he says. The extensive preparations of the allies for open warfare afterward abandoned because of the failure of expected developments.

THE LATE EARNEST L. ZEISS OF WABAN

(In Memoriam)

"You all did love him once, not without cause: What cause withholds you then to mourn for him?"

The sudden and tragic passing of Earnest L. Zeiss of Waban has left a void in the community not easily filled nor forgotten. One of the first home-builders of the West Side, he was quick to see the natural beauty and value of the district; and his twenty years of residence only served to bind his allegiance still more firmly to its charms and development.

Peace hath her valiant sons as well as warfare and a quality of fine citizenship was long since defined through one who asked the Master, "And who is my neighbor?" Earnest Zeiss had a profound and abiding sense of three-fold duty and service—service to home and family ties; service to the community and in his business relations; and service as a Christian and a neighbor. There are many who will join in this tribute of respect and affection for Earnest Zeiss of Waban as a good neighbor.

Possessed of a strong and pleasing personality, a man good to look upon and better still, to know, he did pioneer and lasting work in building up the true democratic and Community Spirit of Waban. No new family moved into the district that he did not desire and work to make its members see and know Waban as he knew and loved it. In times of sickness he was the unfailing visitor and friend, and no intimate acquaintance "passed away" without his last tribute of respect. Gifted alike with voice and ready speech both were always at the service of any helpful cause:—Belgium refugee, French orphan, City waif, a discouraged man or feeble woman meant to him, first and foremost, calls for his personal sympathy and for his individual help. And of his limited substance and strength he gave freely,—and the Lord loved him for a cheerful giver!

John Ruskin, in "Foes Clavigera" has left for us two wise and illuminating sentences: "I am convinced,"—he wrote,— "That it is by his personal conduct that any man of ordinary power will do the greatest amount of good that is in him to do." And in another place,— "The first, not the chief,—but the first piece of good work a man has to do is to find rest for himself, a place for the sole of his foot, his house or piece of Holy land and to make it so holy and happy that if by any chance he receive order to leave it, there may be bitter pain in obedience." Those who were privileged to know Earnest Zeiss in a spirit of sympathetic intimacy know how well he measured up by these two standards of manhood. Those of us who so knew him, and many who did not, may well and thankfully recall the pleasant smile, the hearty greeting and the helping hand, and so remembering, and by practicing,—"Keep his memory green."

MR. DOUGLASS DEAD

John Douglass of 55 Chester street, Newton Highlands, a retired commission merchant, collapsed while out walking near his home on Friday afternoon, and died before medical aid could be summoned. He was eighty-two years old.

Mr. Douglass was for many years a prominent figure in the Faneuil Hall market district, where he was connected with the firm of Isaac Rich & Sons, commission fish merchants. He retired from active business thirty-five years ago. His family has been living in Newton Highlands for the past three years, and previous to that time they lived on Cranston street, Jamaica Plain.

Mr. Douglass was a member of Mount Lebanon Lodge of Masons, and was formerly an active worker in Christ Church, Boston. He is survived by three sons and a daughter.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from his late residence on Chester street and were attended by many friends and business associates. Rev. Louis A. ## Cultivate Courtesy.

How sweet and gracious even in common speech is that sense which we call courtesy! It transmutates aliens into trusting friends, and gives its owner passport round the world.—James T. Field.

RED CROSS WORK

Because of the variety of work being done at the workroom of the Newton Branch of the Red Cross there is work for all, the skilled and the unskilled, the young and the old. Any one who is kind enough to volunteer to work will be welcomed at the Workroom in the Masonic Building in Newtonville, any day, except Saturdays or Sundays, between ten and one. Just at present the great demand is for knitted woolen articles, particularly sweaters and socks. There is also a demand for knitted cotton articles, though this demand is not as great as that for woolen ones.

The Newton Branch of the Red Cross would be glad to have the artists of Newton design posters for it to help interest the people in its work.

The posters on which work is now being done measure 14 x 24 inches, the lower 11 inches being reserved for printing so that the space for the design measures 14 x 13 inches.

The board for posters like these may be had by applying either at the Red Cross workroom or the Red Cross Headquarters at the Newton Club.

Artists if they please may use the whole space for complete posters of their own design or they may use boards of larger size. The three things to emphasize in posters are the need for Red Cross members, the need for Red Cross workers and the need for contributions to the Red Cross. As a rule it is best that a poster emphasize one need only. Those who have a copy of the Boston Transcript of Tuesday, July 31 will find there an illustration of a poster which will give an idea of what the Newton Branch is at work on now.

In the designing of the posters artists may use any medium and as many colors as they should be sent to the Red Cross Headquarters at the Newton Club and all please. Posters when completed should be in by September 15.

Boston officials of the Red Cross have sent out a warning that money is being raised for the Order under false pretences and by those having no right to solicit subscriptions. Contributions for the Newton Branch if sent to Mr. George Royal Pulsifer, Treasurer, Newton Branch of the Red Cross, Newtonville will be acknowledged and gratefully received. The Wool Fund and the General Working Fund are still in need of money.

OPPORTUNITY FOR DRILL

The ambitious men who are accepted for the new drafted army of the United States are given opportunity to prepare themselves for possible appointments as non-commissioned officers in that army through the offer of the Massachusetts State Guard, which has offered the services of its entire staff of commissioned officers, the majority of whom have seen Federal or National Guard service, together with its equipment and the use of its armories and drill halls, to the accepted men of the draft army for the purpose of giving the latter instruction in the rudiments of military drill and regulation.

By means of this, the drafted men who take advantage of the offer will be able to present themselves at the various concentration camps of the State, equipped to give in turn such instruction to others, and being so equipped it is almost assured that they will be immediately named as provisional non-commissioned officers, with opportunity of retaining such ratings and possibly of being advanced to commissioned berths.

NOW FEDERAL TROOPS

Company C, 5th Mass. regiment passed into history on Tuesday afternoon when it was mustered into the Federal service by 2nd Lieutenant Champlin U. S. A. of the Northeast Department. Five of the local company were discharged for physical reasons, and one was discharged at his own request. Their places will be filled from the reserve list, so that the Company will still remain at full war strength.

While in camp at Claffin Field the Company has received many courtesies from residents of this city. Lucy Jackson Chapter, D. A. R., contributed a case of lemons. Mr. Chas. M. Howell has furnished the men with a daily supply of ice cream, the State Guard has presented the Company with a substantial purse of money and books, magazines and tobacco have also been given.

It is expected that the Company will leave for the camp at Charlotte, N. C. either Saturday, or Monday.

Deadly Gila Monster.

The gila monster is a clumsy, heavy lizard, though a full-grown specimen is a wonderfully striking object to behold. It is justly famous as one of Mexico's most interesting reptiles, for it abounds all over that country from the border to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. It is popularly called gila monster because it was once quite common along the Gila river in Arizona.

TRAINING YOUTH IN CITIZENSHIP

New School Law Has Been Successfully Tried Out in the Wendell Phillips School of Boston

MILITIA ON GROUNDS OF WEST END INSTRUCTOR HOUSE IN FOREGROUND.

MILITIA ASSEMBLED IN COMPANIES IN SCHOOLYARD.

STATE LEGISLATURE IN SESSION. HENRY WEINBAUM, LIEUT. GOV. OF WASHINGTON STATE, COMPRISING 3d GRADE SCHOOL CLASSES IS PRESIDING.

There is one school in the West End of Boston that will not have to concern itself over changing its curriculum now that the new State law has gone into effect that public schools shall give instruction in "training in the duties of citizenship."

That is the Wendell Phillips School, at the corner of Phillips and Anderson streets, near the State House, a grammar school for boys. There the pupils have been training themselves in "the duties of citizenship" for more than a year through the organization of a school republic.

The whole school is the "republic"; each grade of five or more rooms, is a "state," and each classroom is a "city" each with its officers, legislative, judicial and executive.

Listen, for example, to the speech of Gov. Max Stearn of the sixth grade, made last Spring at an assembly of the republic, and you will see what one youngster has learned already about the duties of citizenship:

"Fellow Citizens"

"Fellow citizens of the Sixth Grade State and of the whole Republic. On Monday, March 27, 1917, I had the honor to be elected governor of the Sixth Grade State.

"Immediately each room was re-organized as a city. There are six cities in the Sixth Grade State. We did not make much of our school states, till this spring, when Mr. Hulse was given charge of the Republic.

"Although the State has been re-organized such a short time I feel that much good has been accomplished. "Legislative meetings have been held weekly. At these meetings it has been our object to pass laws which would help in self-government on the street as well as in the schoolroom.

"One of these laws means taken whereby the boys should not loiter in coming to school.

"Another was to stop playing ball on the street.

"Also we have tried to have the citizens take more interest in keeping the streets cleaner.

"It has been applied to the schoolroom also. It has been our aim to raise the standard of our daily work by having more self-control and interest.

"These things, with others which have been started, are laying the foundation for good citizenship. With the very favorable start of this year, next year ought to be most successful. Respectfully yours,

"Max Stearn."

Organizing the Republic

The demonstration at the Wendell Phillips School was begun in April, 1916, by the master, Cyrus B. Collins, along lines suggested by Wilson L. Gill, the exponent of school republics. Mr. Collins assembled all the pupils of the Wendell Phillips School, and some from other school buildings in his charge, and introduced Mr. Gill, who told the boys of the bad moral and civic conditions throughout our country which sadly need a remedy. It was explained how democracy could be made to serve every good purpose by proper training in the use of it in all schools in every land. The pupils voted for this, with a great show of enthusiasm.

Mr. Gill read to them the school federal constitution, for which they voted unanimously. By a very short process, he had them, in a very few moments, elect a president, vice-president and other officers. He proceeded in the same way in organizing the states and cities. Thus the teachers and pupils saw how the matter can be handled practically and quickly.

Duties of Citizenship

Mr. Gill wrote the bill which requires instruction in the duties of citizenship, a bill which was introduced by Representative J. Weston Allen of Newton, and which was passed without a dissenting vote. To Mr. Gill the "duties of citizenship" mean this, as he defined them to a Globe reporter: "The duties of citizenship are to maintain the spirit and attitude of friendliness and co-operation for every good purpose toward the community and the Government, and to serve in this spirit of the Golden Rule wherever there is an opportunity to do so; to be obedient to every lawful authority; to pay taxes without evasion; to help make, enforce and interpret laws, either directly or through elected representatives; to vote intelligently at every election in which a citizen has a right to vote; to serve intelligently and faithfully when elected or appointed to any office; when called into court, to give every possible assistance to reach a just decision, and to abide by the decision of the court or appeal to a higher tribunal; to render every reasonable service for the defense and welfare of the community, of the Nation and of human rights; to encourage the developing of this kind of citizenship in every land, as a necessary defense of our own Nation, since the present war is demonstrating beyond all question, the solidarity of the human race."

Submaster as Adviser

Mr. Gill has found that it is desirable and in most cases absolutely necessary for the success of any plan of citizenship, that the headmaster should give the responsibility and necessary authority to one of the teachers to direct the civic work throughout the school, leaving himself free to treat this subject the same as any other. Complying with Mr. Gill's request, Mr. Collins designated the submaster, Edward E. Hulse, to supervise the use of the method in the several buildings of his district.

The delicate task of guiding the enthusiasm of the youngsters with careful oversight, and without seeming to restrict their independence, has been Mr. Hulse's task; and last week he said to a Globe reporter that the republic has proven a successful undertaking this Spring and that it gives promise of greater usefulness next year.

The time the "government" takes from classwork is not considerable, only about half an hour a week in each room for the assemblies of municipal, State or National bodies. And the measures considered in these assemblies cover pretty nearly the whole scope of boys' activities.

Some are passed and some fail. "Cut it out!" has been the vocal verdict which has spoken the defeat of many a bill, but the citizens have now learned that the proper way to "cut it out" on any bill is to vote it out in orderly fashion.

The "President's" message will show the machinery of the "Government," perhaps, in the words of "President" Courland to "Congress" assembled:

The President's Message

"Mr. Chairman, members of the National Congress, and citizens of the Wendell Phillips Federal Government: "I extend to you a most cordial greeting. You have assembled here today (in the school hall) to listen to the first message of your president. Our school government is an assured fact, and the most pleasing reports have come to me of the efforts that you are making toward making our school self-governing.

"There is yet, however, a lot of hard work to be done, and I call each one of you to work, and to work hard, toward the common aims of our republic, to make the Wendell Phillips School the very best in the city, and toward making ourselves the pride of our teachers.

"Perhaps it would be interesting to review briefly the machinery of our republic.

"Every week council meetings are held in the different rooms. These meetings are very interesting, and the results are being shown everywhere. The State Legislature has meetings made up from three legislators from each city, and meetings of Congress are also held. Thus we follow in a general way our National form of government.

"We Must Aim High"

"As your president, I wish to call your attention to several things which I think need looking after. Let me ask the larger and older boys to set a good example to the younger boys in their actions in and out of the school building.

"Do not urge small boys to fight—stop them. "Do not play ball in the streets. Do not gamble in any form. There is very little smoking among you citizens, but still let us all unite to stop this evil entirely.

"Let us have a real clean West End. It is the little things which count, and if our republic has started the development of real self-control among you, it has not been wholly in vain.

"Let our health commissioners, with the aid of the National Commissioner, bend their efforts toward bettering the conditions in our district.

"We must aim high, and we must remember that we are members of the Wendell Phillips District, and that we boys today are the real citizens of tomorrow, and the future of this republic is in our hands."

Congress in Action

President Courland was not without power in Congress, apparently, for the Journal of Congress for June 7, 1917, discloses prompt action on one of the president's points in his message, as follows:

"Resolved, That gambling of every kind shall be abolished by every Wendell Phillips School student, if possible by every person who gambles."

And as for drastic measures, no anti-trust legislation has had the teeth of this anti-gambling bill, which provides that any officers of city, State or Nation found gambling shall be asked to resign "without court trial," and "this bill includes every form of gambling to be stopped, such as craps, pitching pennies, playing agates or even playing with stones, whether it is for keeps or not."

Further, "All officers shall have pencils and paper, and if they should see a boy who is gambling it is their duty to take his name, time of gambling, place where he gambles and number of his schoolroom, such as 'Master Anybody, 8:30, corner Anderson and Phillips, room 60.'"

That bill is simply an example of the way the boys go at their self-governing. It works for improvement in many other ways. Mr. Hulse says that there have been fewer "red hands" in school this Spring, red hands being an aftermath of punishment for bad behavior.

Has Eliminated Substitute Teachers

Mr. Hulse also says that occasionally classes have been left without teachers, where formerly substitute teachers would have been placed in the room to watch the boys. Under their republic, the boys can be trusted without the slightest risk of disorder. On this point principal Collins remarked: "Substitute teachers are always at a disadvantage, as are the pupils under them. They have not become acquainted, there is friction, trouble and loss of time. In the absence of a teacher, an hour, a day or several days, pupil citizens go right along with their work—no friction, no trouble, no loss of time. This is not a mere theory, it is fully demonstrated in this school."

Another development has been the "militia" of the Republic, which is not military in purpose, Mr. Hulse explains, but is organized to give the boys drill in the schoolyard and to teach them the fundamentals of discipline. Fernald E. Hulse, a member of the Harvard R. O. T. C. Band, has assisted his father in the militia drill.

The courts of the Republics have been busy, too, as well as the executive officers, and the citizens have found quick remedies for what seemed evils in their form of government. No constitutional convention was necessary. When they wanted to recall a certain governor they quickly found a way which fitted in with their frame of government.

Among other things the boys passed a resolution calling on each city to make an appropriation to meet a bill for a picture machine at the school, and more than $50 was raised in this way.

Next year the boys and the masters at the school and Mr. Gill expect to see even greater good results coming out of this school republic.

Report on The School Republic in the Wendell Phillips School

By Edgar E. Hulse, Sub-master
October, 1916

I have been asked to report on our use of the Student Government in the Wendell Phillips School last spring and what we can do about it this year.

I am in full sympathy with the movement and believe that great good may be accomplished by its adoption, not only as a valuable means to aid in self-government among pupils in their school life, but as the very best method of teaching practical civics and building up a correct and strong citizenship in our local communities and our nation.

We did not begin to organize the work until quite late in the spring and at a time when teachers and pupils were exceedingly busy with the closing work of the year. We organized, however, fourteen (14) municipalities, three states, and a national government in our main building, Mr. Gill, the originator of the method leading us in the work.

Each room was organized into a civic unit or municipality, with its Mayor, Judge, Clerks and other officers. Each pupil in the class became a citizen and the whole class constituted the legislative department of the city.

In several instances the cities proceeded to do business in a very creditable manner.

These fourteen municipalities included four eighth grades, five seventh and five sixth grades.

The cities of each grade were next organized into states with state officers and government and finally a national government was formed of the three states.

The limited time and press of work prevented our carrying out our plans completely and of getting as definite results as we desired.

Our athletic commission, however, did some good work for playground meets and the health department planned to organize for "clean up" work.

JUDGE KENNEDY DEAD

Judge of the Newton Court for 28 Years and a Man of Influence and Power

The community was shocked on Saturday morning to learn of the death of Judge John C. Kennedy of the Newton Police Court.

Judge Kennedy, who has not been in the best of health for the past few years, held court as usual on Tuesday morning of last week, but went to the Newton Hospital that day for most beautiful and filled the chancel of the church.

Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, the pastor, officiated and a male quartet sang "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Over the Hillsides."

These friends of Judge Kennedy acted as pallbearers: Charles H. Ramsay, vice president of the Merchants an X-ray examination. On Friday his condition became so serious that an operation for ulcers of the stomach was made and he passed away the next morning.

THE LATE JUDGE JOHN C. KENNEDY

Judge Kennedy was born in Bedford, N. H., in 1855, and came to Newton in the early seventies, an uncouth and illiterate youth, finding employment as a night watchman. On February 3, 1874, he was appointed a member of the Newton Police force, serving until 1878. In the meantime he studied hard, became a protégé of one of the old Newton families and was admitted to the bar of the state in 1879. He was associated for some years with the late George W. Morse of Newtonville in the practice of law. In 1886 he was elected a member of the Common Council of Newton from ward 7 and re-elected for 1887 and 1888. He served for a part of the year 1889 as alderman from ward 7, resigning in August to accept the office of Judge of the Newton Police Court as successor to the late John C. Park.

He was appointed a trustee of the Newton Free Library in 1903, having been identified with that institution for several years as the superintendent. He served for some years in the Massachusetts militia, and was captain of Company C, 5th Regiment, the Claffin Guard, from Sept. 26, 1887, to February 6, 1889, and always retained a deep interest in military affairs. Judge Kennedy was a director of the First National Bank of West Newton, a trustee and member of the investment board of the West Newton executive committee of the Middlesex Club.

Judge Kennedy was never married and is survived by one nephew. While he retained his legal residence in this city, Judge Kennedy resided for many years at his summer home in Weston. By direction of Mayor Childs, the flags in the city were half masted while the body awaited burial.

The funeral services, which were held Tuesday afternoon in the West Newton Unitarian Church, were attended by a large number of friends and indicated in no uncertain manner, the respect and esteem in which he was held. The floral tributes were

National Bank; Joseph O. Hayden, treasurer of Middlesex County; John R. Fairbairn, sheriff of Middlesex County; Volney Skinner, a law partner; former Senator Chester B. Williams and Roland F. Gammons, 2nd, treasurer of the West Newton Savings Bank. The ushers were Henry B. Patrick, a law partner; John A. Potter and J. Ellis Gammons.

The interment was in the Newton Cemetery.

CO. C. GRATEFUL

The following letter from Capt. Cornerais of Co. C, Fifth Regiment, explains itself:

To the Editor:— Before leaving with my company for mobilization camp, I wish to express to the citizens of Newton thru your paper, my grateful appreciation for what has been done for Company C.

I have been made very proud by the interest taken in my command during its stay here; in fact, nothing that may ever come to me in later life will quite measure up to the honors that have been heaped on me as Commander of the local company.

To the people who have sent gifts in the shape of tobacco, money for the fund and to those fine women who gave so much time in making up the comfort boxes, I cannot find words to state my feelings.

However, I know that the organization will be better on account of the backing received, and I shall do all in my power to bring the men back to you better in every way for the trials that they have undergone.

Should it happen that men are lost, my only hope is that it will be thru necessity or on account of conditions beyond my control.

To the people of Newton I leave the mothers of the men, all of whom are making the greatest sacrifice in giving up their boys.

In closing, let me call attention to the fine work of Mrs. James G. White, who has the roster of the company, and I am sure no family of a member

FAREWELL PARADE

Company C. Greeted with Enthusiasm in Five Mile March

In anticipation of the departure of Company C of the Fifth Regiment for the training camp at Charlotte, N. C., a farewell parade was held last Friday afternoon. The affair was arranged at remarkably short notice, and the response by the State Guard and the Newton Constabulary was admirable.

The procession formed at the camp of the Company on Claffin Field and marched thru Elm road, Walnut street, Forest street, Columbus street, Lincoln street, Walnut street, Lake avenue, Beacon street, Centre street, Washington street, Lowell avenue to Claffin Field.

The parade was formed as follows: Platoon of Police Chief Marshal, General James G. White and staff.

Fifth Regiment Band Company C, 5th Regiment, Captain H. D. Cornerais, commanding.

Newton Company, State Guard, Capt. John C. DeMille, commanding.

Newtonville Unit, Newton Constabulary, Capt. W. N. Dudley, commanding.

Waban Unit, Newton Constabulary, Capt. J. R. Chandler, commanding.

Newton Centre Unit, Newton Constabulary, Lieut. F. H. Baird, commanding.

Newton Highlands Unit, Newton Constabulary, Lieut. J. E. Mason, Jr., commanding.

West Newton and Newton Units, Newton Constabulary, Capt. C. L. Eddy, commanding.

Auburndale Unit, Newton Constabulary, Capt. L. D. MacNutt, commanding.

Newton Constabulary Drum Corps Detail of Boy Scouts.

Chief Marshal White had a large and representative staff including the officers of the Newton Constabulary, Mayor Edwin O. Childs, Aldermen John W. Murphy, Percy M. Blake, Arthur W. Hollis, Fred W. Cobb, Robert M. Clark, and Arthur Kendrick, and officers and members of the Claffin Guards Veteran Corps.

Over 700 men were in line and made an excellent appearance. Company C was given an ovation all along the line of march, and notwithstanding the fact that little advance notice had been given and so many persons being away for the summer, the parade attracted a good deal of attention, the largest number being present at No-nantum square.

The State Guard turned out in splendid shape, and out of a membership of 75 men and three officers, 71 were in line on Friday with less than 24 hours' notice being given.

The expectations that Company C would be ordered to Quincy early this week with the rest of the 5th Regiment did not materialize and the Company is still in camp on Claffin Field and will probably stay there until it leaves for Charlotte, N. C.

LEAVES FOR FRAMINGHAM

Company C, which has been in camp for the past two or three weeks on Claffin Field, Newtonville, broke camp this morning about ten o'clock, and amid the plaudits of a large number of residents, marched to Newtonville square, where Company F of Waltham was met and the two companies took electric cars for Newton Highlands, where connections were made with the Boston & Worcester line.

They will reach the Framingham camp ground this noon, where their stay is indefinite.

Company C will want while she can attend to them.

To Mr. Garcelon, Dr. Curtis, Dr. Jack and the Committee on Public Safety, I can simply say thank you for all that has been done. Nothing has been overlooked.

A weekly letter will be sent to your paper as long as we will be able to attend to it, giving all the news of how the men are faring.

Yours very sincerely,
HENRY D. CORMERAIS, Captain.

EDITORIAL

The editor had an unusual opportunity during the parade last Friday to witness the attitude of our community towards the boys who were carried in the line. It is with a feeling of regret and sadness that he is obliged to state that the men and boys of this city ought to be thoroughly ashamed of themselves for the indifference and lack of respect towards the emblem of national power and liberty. Four out of five of every group of men and boys who were passed during that march of over five miles neglected to remove their hats or to give the flag even the semblance of regard. Newtonville showed the least respect, Newton Highlands was a little better and Newton Centre, especially among the smaller boys, was fairly good, while Newton did very well, although it is probable that the increase in salutation was due to the larger numbers present than to other reasons. Those who failed to salute included men in sailors' uniform, men in khaki, boy scouts, letter carriers, police officers in uniform and in plain dress, street railway employees, gentlemen sitting on verandas of residences on some of our best streets, etc. The lack of respect among drivers of the hundreds of automobiles parked along the route was particularly noticeable, hardly one in ten noticing the flag in any way.

Our people ought to realize that the national colors when carried in a parade represent the glory and majesty of a nation of a hundred millions of people and the very least that one can do is to recognize that fact by some form of respectful salute, preferably the removal of the hat. This fact should be taught in our public schools until it becomes a habit in the younger generation. For, in the past week are any criterion, the boys of today are not taught this simple duty or are taught in such a manner as to leave little impression on their minds. Let us end this article as it begun. The men and boys of Newton ought to be ashamed of their lack of respect for the national flag.

The late Judge John C. Kennedy was a splendid example of a self made man. Illiterate and uncouth in his younger days, by sheer native ability and determination he won an education and a place in the community of power and influence. His work in the Newton Police court during the past twenty-eight years cannot be overestimated. He administered justice with a rare mixture of common sense and legal knowledge and was principally interested in the prevention rather than in punishing crime. No one in the city has probably done more in the interest of temperance than Judge Kennedy, for no one realized more than he did, the innumerable evils that followed the use of intoxicating liquor and he used his influence and authority many, many times to prevent its use. To first offenders against the laws of the state he was lenient and merciful, often dismissing the case after a plain, sensible lecture and good advice. Persons who persisted in transgressing the law, however, found him a stern and righteous judge, fully determined to protect the community against their malfeasances. Judge Kennedy took office amid the fears of many people that Governor Ames had made a great mistake in his appointment, and lived long enough to know that in his work on the bench he had earned the respect and esteem of the entire community.

The State Guard of this city should have two buglers, and invites any persons interested to join its ranks.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Newton Y. M. C. A. baseball team played a fine game with the Plymouth Cordage Co. at Plymouth, Saturday, Aug. 11th, the Y. M. C. A. team winning with a score of 7-4. Mr. S. A. Carling returns Wednesday, Aug. 15th, to take charge of the team again. After six successful weeks the Frank A. Day Camp closed its second session, August 10th. Thirty-four boys enjoyed the camp this summer under the leadership of Mr. W. H. Sears, the boys' secretary. A good many improvements were made this summer and others are to be made for next year. With enlarged equipment the camp can accommodate from 50 to 75 boys. This camp will very likely develop into one of the most important features of the summer work of the Association.

Out of the membership of the Association are going many young men to serve their country in different positions in the Army and Navy. The first man to be drawn was Mr. Chadd, a Newton Y. M. C. A. man. Those who took the regular exercise in the gymnasium last winter will certainly pass the physical examinations with flying colors.

LIFE AT CAMP NEWTON

Newton High School Boys in New Hampshire Camp Give Interesting Descriptions of their Surroundings and Duties

Camp Newton

Camp Newton is located at Walpole, New Hampshire, about 104 miles from Newton. The fact that it is not situated nearer home has undoubtedly caused many people not even to know of its existence, or at least wonder why the camp was located where it was and how it concerned Newton. The camp is distinctly an effort on the part of the Newton boys from our three high schools to help in increasing the food supply. The boys are going about their task with most commendable earnestness and realization of the possibilities for service which are opened to them by this enterprise. This undertaking is of local as well as of wider concern. The food which the boys are aiding in producing will homes hereabout is sold in the Boston market. A considerable amount of the potatoes, beans, and corn meal is likewise for Boston consumption. One factory of the Baxter Brothers, who are engaged in the corn canning industry, is nearby, as is also a large corn acreage cultivated by them with the aid of some of our campers. This concern sells one-twelfth of its output to the government to help feed the army, and also supplies many Boston firms. The Mason Farm sells a considerable amount of its crop to the Emerson Seed Company of Boston.

At the request of the Newton Committee on Public Safety we have asked a few of the boys to write short articles that the Newton people may obtain a clearer insight into the life and work of the boys at Camp Newton.

The Advance Party at Camp Newton By "SQUUNK" (Albert E. Hunt)

On June 9, the advance party which was to prepare Camp Newton for the rest of the boy farmers, left Auburn in an ancient truck loaded with seventeen tents, an ice chest, tool boxes, and other accessories. The party was made up of Mr. Leon White of the Vocational High School, Austin Eaton, and Albert Hunt. Leaving Auburn at 4:30 a. m., we passed through Waltham, Concord, Groton, Fitchburg, Winchendon, and Keene, to Walpole. The trip was without excitement, and we reached our destination at 4 p. m., having averaged a little better than ten miles per hour for a distance of about a hundred and ten miles.

We found ourselves at a small farmhouse, within two hundred yards of the Connecticut and on the river road to Walpole. This was to be the mess shack of the Camp. During the remainder of the day we unloaded the truck, filled our beds with straw, and had supper at a nearby farmhouse where we were to eat during the week. Later in the day Mr. Murray arrived with Gordon Pierce and Harold Douglas, who afterward became famous as Big and Little Glue. The first days of the week nothing could be done toward erecting tents, on account of the rain, and the time was spent in cleaning out the barn connected with the farmhouse. With the help of Mr. Barney of the Vocational High, we practically rebuilt the barn, and put in floors strong enough to hold the truck and a Ford.

Wednesday, the weather was dry enough so that we were able to cut a path through the underbrush which covered the side of the hill on which the camp was to be located. At the top of the hill was a flat pasture. Here, with Mr. Barney's aid, we began to assemble the tent floors, which had to be carefully saved and packed for 9x9 tents. This was one of the hardest pieces of work we had to do. The floors were placed so as to form a company street, and the tents erected over them. In back of the tents four twenty-foot posts were set up and a framework constructed to hold two hogheads. These were to supply water for shower-baths, and were to be filled by a power-pump from a brook at the foot of the hill. An old spring was dug out and a pipe line laid to carry drinking water to the kitchen. After several unsuccessful trials the pump finally gave water.

This was our first taste of work to come, and all of us found sleeping easy. However, on Friday night we attended the graduation of the eight pupils of the Walpole High School and enjoyed it immensely. We were the cause of some wonder as we drove up in the Kelly truck.

By Saturday night camp was ready for the arrival of the twenty-four fellows who were to make it their home for the rest of the summer.

A Glimpse of Camp Newton By "DUST" (Bruce E. Stewart)

Camp Newton is located midway between Westmoreland and Walpole. It is approximately 108 miles from Boston. The first view of the Camp that one sees as one comes around the bend in the road is a large wooden signboard, and upon it the insignia of the state of Massachusetts and the words "CAMP NEWTON," painted in Orange and Black. The sign is artistically suspended from a rustic signpost.

A few steps beyond stands the house which serves as a mess room and as a place of amusement on rainy evenings. Two large rooms are used as mess-rooms, while another is used as an emergency room or as a guest room in case some friends of the boys wish to stop at Camp overnight. Besides the kitchen there is still another room, which contains our pool table, a set of checkers, a box of dominoes, and some chessmen. Upon the walls are displayed pennants from all the leading colleges and some secret college societies.

Leaving the house we go around to the stable. A glance within discloses the two Camp trucks. One is a light "diner" used for taking a few fellows to work at a farm four miles from Camp. The other is a Kelly-Springfield two ton truck, used for hauling Camp freight and for taking the entire Camp on their auto trips. A minute's walk enables us to reach the broad, placid Connecticut River. It is here that a good sized float has been erected by the fellows, and a large swimming pool has been roped off. Our twenty-foot boat lies moored at one side of the float.

From the river we wander back toward the house. Almost directly opposite the house stands our pumping engine. This supplies the shower-baths on the top of the hill. It is also valuable for it turns our ice cream freezer, enabling us to have sherbet three times a week and ice cream every Sunday.

We leave the vicinity of the engine to mount to the top of the hill, where the Camp itself is located. After climbing a few stairs we come to a large refrigerator, set in the ground. This refrigerator is used for storing the large quantities of food. The stairs, by the way, were cut out of the solid bank after a great deal of hard labor. After climbing to the top of the hill we see the fifty-foot flag-pole with the Stars and Stripes above and the flag of the State of Massachusetts beneath. Turning around from the flag-pole, we look across the beautiful river to the wooded foot-hills of the Green Mountains in Vermont. Several trains pass on the Vermont side of the river each day, and often late at night long lighted trains may be seen traveling toward Canada. New Hampshire is not to be outdone so far as scenery is concerned, for the foot-hills of the White Mountains can be plainly seen from Camp.

Leaving the flag-pole, we reach the first tent in Camp. It is occupied by Mr. Kidger, the Camp Supervisor, more generally spoken of by the boys as "Major." Next to this tent stands the library tent, which is perhaps the most popular one in Camp. A home-made book-case, one corner of which contains about fifty library books. There are also several current magazines in sight. "The World's Work," "The Review of Reviews," "Popular Mechanics," "The Outlook," "The Literary Digest," and "Forest and Stream," not to mention an occasional copy of "Life" or "Puck." At the rear of the tent stands a table upon which is a box for outgoing mail, while next to that is an incoming mail cabinet with a separate compartment for every boy in Camp. Above this table hangs the bulletin board, which contains several interesting clippings from the papers. Posted there also are the rules governing the pool and quoit tournaments. Along the right side of the tent is a long writing table, which is generally in use by a number of fellows who write nine letters a day. Outside is a large bottle cooler which contains the drinking water. It is filled twice a day with fresh water.

Stretched comfortably between two large pine trees, in the midst of a small pine grove, is our hammock. This is always a favorite place on a hot evening. The Major's tent and the library tent are at a little distance from the tents occupied by the fellows themselves. Next in line, the first tent in the regular camp, is the hospital tent. This tent is occupied by our Camp physician "Drip" Perry. He has a large table loaded with medicines and bandages, ready for any emergency that may arise.

In a clearing on top of the hill stands the main group of tents. They are arranged in a double line to form a company street. Each tent belongs to the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia and is nine feet square. Two fellows sleep in each tent. The tents are provided with wooden bed frames, wooden floors, mattresses, mirrors, and lanterns, all furnished by camp authorities. Mr. Kidger has also supplied for each of the tents a copy of the Oath of the Athenian Youth, which reads as follows:

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our city, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice, nor desert our suffering comrades in the ranks. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the city, both alone and with many."

"We will reverse and obey the city's laws, and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those above us who are prone to annul and set them at naught. We will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty, that we may transmit our city not less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

The mosquitoes are biting fairly well, and to overcome this difficulty netting has been given to each tent for use as the inmates think best. Up to date the most successful arrangement for preventing mosquitoes from biting you while in bed has been to make a box-like frame for the bed and to cover it with netting.

A glance into any of the tents shows how neatly they are kept. Each tent has the two wooden bed-frames on opposite sides. Behind each bed stands the occupant's trunk. Nailed to the rear tent-pole is a board with hooks in it for the fellows to hang their clothing on. Upon the front pole is tacked a copy of the Oath of the Athenian Youth, and below that a mirror is hung. Between the two poles a wire rope is suspended, upon which towels and clothing may be hung up. The lights are placed in various ways. Some prefer their light on a trunk, while others like their lantern hung to the ridge-pole. However, this is a minor question, and there is really no choice as to which way is the better. Each has its advantages and disadvantages.

Last but not least come the shower-baths. Two giant hogheads are supported upon a platform twenty feet high, and two regular shower-bath nozzles have been provided, so that we have really good showers. This, if we include a baseball field and a quail ground (used as a drill field twice a week), finishes in detail the description of Camp Newton.

The Order of the Day at Camp Newton

By "JOCK"
(John Lewis)

"Can it!" "Let it loose!" "Have a common sense!" are the cries heard down the company street at Camp Newton as the last notes of reveille die away, and towsy heads are stuck out of the tents. Then "Major" Kidger parades up the street, pulling the sleepy-heads out of their beds. Reville sounds at 5:30, and five minutes later the company is lined up ready for the setting-up exercises. These are followed by a shower, which is especially enjoyed by "Grunt" Hunt and "Fish" Scott.

When everybody has been under the shower and thoroughly awakened mess is sounded by Bugler Perry, D. D. ("Doc Drip"), and Sergeant "Onions". Trow marches the company down to mess.

After everyone has eaten his fill "Onions" takes his command from the farmhouse to the camp, where they are dismissed. Promptly at 6:40 the call to quarters brings the members to attention in front of their tents, while First and Second Sergeants Trow and Spaulding inspect the street and the quarters. Inspection finished, Perry sounds assembly, and at 6:45 the boys start for work. I will not take the time to tell about the work; suffice it to say that another member of our camp will perform this difficult task.

At twelve, the fellows return for lunch, and at one go back to work. Then at five o'clock work is finished for the day, and everyone goes in for a swim in the Connecticut. At 6:30 mess is sounded, and the hard workers file down to dinner. After dinner the fellows are at liberty to do as they please. The occupations of the evening are too numerous to mention, but "Deacon" Keyes's writing nine letters every night and the coaxing by the boys for permission to go down town are the shining features. Also music by our orchestra of three mandolins, occasional pajama parades and free fights, and Frank Capodanno's and "Jawn" McCann's witty remarks, help to while away the time, until tattoo at 8:45 reminds us that we have but fifteen minutes left before "lights out".

Then promptly at nine taps sound and the fellows settle down to a well-deserved sleep, the soundness of the sleep depending upon the temperature and the number of mosquitoes in the vicinity. The Camp is run on regular schedule, but the Fourth of July was an exception to the rule. Though we were not able to obtain fire crackers and enjoy an exciting Fourth, we nevertheless had a very pleasant time. In the morning the Camp baseball team, consisting of Eaton, Giles, Wiley, Hunt, Lewis, Henderson, Livingston, Scott, and Leete, were defeated by Walpole. The umpire, who was a Walpole butcher, gave some very raw decisions.

At two we had a flag-raising and drill in Camp, and we were inspected by a party from the village and also a few French ladies. Then at four o'clock we boarded the Camp truck and rode to a lawn party at the home of Miss Mason, a wealthy lady of Walpole. We finished the day by going to the movies at Bellows Falls, Vt.

The Working Day at Camp Newton

By "ICHABOD"
(Frederick Adams)

Camp Newton is a farm camp. Anyone who should chance to see the boys as they start to work would feel most certain of this fact. The prevalent costume seems to be khaki trousers, flannel shirt, and "hick" straw hat. Since the summer began, from ten to fourteen of the boys—about half of those in Camp—have been employed on the Mason Farm. This farm covers an area three and a half miles long by a mile wide. Every morning the boys leave Camp at quarter of seven, and after a walk of three-fourths of a mile through the morning mist, they arrive at the house where orders await them.

First we pitch off four or five loads of hay which have stood over night.

Then we are set to work weeding onions. At about nine o'clock the sun burns through the fog, and we begin to feel the heat.

During the morning the "boss" appears and orders us to spread out and turn over the hay. We leave the much-despised job of weeding onions and take our pitchforks. Shortly before noon we start for Camp in a wagon. We eat our noon-day meal, rest in the shade till quarter of one, and then return to work in our "Kelly" truck. Three of the boys are delegated to manage the horse-rakes. Some of us work in the field tumbler, on pitching on, and loading, while others unload the racks as fast as they come to the barns. Often it is necessary to relay the hay up ten or fifteen feet into the mows. In most of the barns horse-forks take the loads off in eight or ten forkfuls, and distribute the hay on the higher mows. At quarter of five we return to Camp, covered with sweat and haydust.

Of the other boys at Camp five have been hoeing corn for Baxter Brothers, canning factory. They have already hoed about seventy-five acres of corn and are good for a lot more if necessary. On rainy days they unload cans and barrels of sugar from the trains. Three boys work at the Bridge Farm, where they maintain a market garden and pitch hay. The other two fellows work for Mr. Smalley, haying, hoeing, and tending the cattle.

In a week seven of us hoed eighteen acres of beans for Mr. Murray. The rows are three-eighths of a mile long, and if stretched out in one continuous row would extend forty miles. In four days the bean bunch and six men harvested sixty acres of hay. Four boys and three men hoed four and a half acres of tobacco in about eight hours. Our representatives on the Mason Farm have weeded about a hundred miles of onions, or enough to stretch from Camp to dear old Newton. We have weeded beets enough to extend from Newton to Boston and back. Several other minor tasks were piling wood, setting up corn, cleaning out a reservoir, and stacking oats.

At Camp, work is also going on. Mr. Kidger and others have built a flight of forty-four dirt steps from the road to Camp. They have erected a flag-pole, roped off a swimming-hole, built a float, laid pipe for the showers, dammed the brook, and constructed a refrigerator. For fatigue duty the boys chop kindling wood. Regular duties are required of the boys, such as water and garden duties.

Last but not least I wish to mention our pay. The boys are paid a dollar a day and board. Nine hours of work is expected each day, and on rainy days indoor work is provided. The farmers and boys get along finely together, each working to help the other. Most of the boys can hoe as well and as fast as the farmers. Besides the pecuniary compensation the boys receive a larger and better pay. They have become acquainted with the farmers and farming conditions, and feel that they are proving of real service to the Nation and to their State. This last they value highest.

The Health of Camp Newton

By "DOC DRIP"
(Robert Perry)

It is a well-known fact that in an army, if proper precautions are not taken, fully as many men meet their deaths from disease as from the enemy's guns. The diseases start while the army is encamped. We are in a camp, and if the same care were not taken disease would soon appear. This fact has been borne in mind since the beginning, with the result that Camp Newton has been remarkably free from disease.

In Camp Newton we try to keep the latrines as cleanly and as odorless as possible. Besides the latrines, the grounds must be kept free from all particles of candy, cake, etc., to prevent the flies gathering. Of course, the water must be pure and free from dirt. Our water was tested by a specialist before we came here. It is taken from a spring a hundred yards from any house or barn. The spring is boxed in and always kept closed. As a result we have clear drinking water, free from dirt, leaves, etc. The chances of contagious diseases are reduced still further by giving each fellow a cup of his own. Fresh water from the spring is always at hand in a cooler near the tents.

Despite precautions against disease, however, minor accidents are bound to occur in the daily work and about Camp. We have had a few cases of slight blood-poisoning, arising from infected cuts. Several of these wounds closed up at once, and it is likely to become infected if the fork is dirty. One boy tore his hand on barbed wire; another had a sore arm because of infected mosquito bites; others have had blisters which became infected.

The heat affects many of the fellows, and well it may, for we have been doing the hardest kind of work, haying, while the temperature reaches 130 degrees in the sun, which was all the thermometer would register. Oh! a farmer's life is not without its discomforts. But Camp Newton is well prepared. We have an emergency tent in which all necessary appliances are kept. Also in the mess house there is a room in which there is a regular bed. If anyone is really sick he may sleep in the bed. Fortunately, there has not yet been any need of this room.

The enviable record of freedom from sickness at Camp Newton has been due not only to the precaution which has been taken by the Supervisor, but also in large measure to the willingness of the boys to observe the rules laid down for them.

Amusements at Camp Newton

By "BLUEY"
(Ralph Henderson)

In a camp where twenty-five high school boys are gathered together there must be plenty of amusement or something is likely to break. However, nothing very serious has happened at Camp Newton thus far, and we hope all is safe for the future. There is no time for amusements (Continued on page 3) till five o'clock. At that time we stop work and practically everybody goes in for a swim. The Connecticut River flows two hundred yards or so from the Camp, and a good-sized swimming-pool has been roped off in it. We have found that much fun is to be had by scrambling for a ping-pong ball thrown into the water. Though there are many duckings when the ball lands in deep water, and many bruises when it lands on the bank, yet it is fine sport. When the Camp started, three boys could not swim; but now, under the competent instruction of Mr. Kidger, everybody in Camp can swim.

After the swim comes dinner, which, though hardly to be classed as an amusement, is nevertheless a pleasure. 4 hours' work + ½ hour swim = copious appetite.

There is a pool table much frequented after supper. At the present time there are rumors of a pool tournament, but at present they are rumors only. However, there is a quilt tournament now in progress. The Camp has been divided into five teams, with names more significant than eloquent. The teams are the "Dinger," the "Skunks," the "Woodchucks," the "Chimpunks," and the "Bear Team," captained by Dingo Leete, Squunk Hunt, Pest Giles, Henderson, and One and Only Livingston, respectively. At the present writing the Skunks lead, with the Woodchucks in second place, while the Bear Team occupies last place.

There is a good deal of spontaneous music in Camp. There are three mandolins and a number of good voices, which make automobile rides and dull evenings pleasant. There are also hopes of a Victrola and a piano, but hopes do not give a great deal of music.

Once a week we go to the movies. There is a venerable motor vehicle which goes (or doesn't go) under the name of a Kelly truck. We all pile into this on Friday nights and wander over to Walpole village to fill up the movie house. At first the police force of Walpole came in and sat down in the vacant chair behind us, evidently thinking that we meant evil. But the theater authorities (consisting of the minister and the sheriff) have now given us the privilege of singing during the performance if we wish to, so now the old gentleman doesn't come along.

Bellows Falls, Vermont, is only eight miles distant from Camp. When the Kelly is working, therefore, it is within easy access. From time to time the Major may be prevailed upon to let us go to the movies there. Thus it is that on an occasional pleasant evening a very much loaded truck may be seen wending its way toward Bellows Falls. Once inside the movie house the sign "Welcome to Camp Newton" is flashed on the screen, and we give them a "hokey-pokey" just to let everybody know who we are and where we come from.

Not long ago the Congregational Church of Walpole invited us to a social. There we indulged in progressive games and ice cream. After this Camp Newton's aforesaid three mandolins made the evening horrible for a short period of time, when the ice cream dishes as a penalty for low scores in the progressive games. It was worth money to see Hunt dressed up in long dresses, manfully handling a dishcloth.

Not to be outdone by the Congregational Church, the Ladies League gave us a dance. There was much shawing and shining of shoes and borrowing of ties before this gay affair, which was held in the movie house. A Victrola furnished the music, and some pretty girls and a good floor did the rest. We had a fine time, and reached Camp tired but happy.

A favorite Sunday sport is washing clothes. This occupation attracts almost everybody in Camp, though it may hardly be referred to as a popular sport. The products are clean hands all round, and a good many back-aches; and though the results of our labors are hardly to be hailed as triumphs of cleanliness, yet they are pretty good, taking all things into consideration.

Camp Newton also boasts a ball team which has played one game so far. This game was played July fourth against the Walpole town team. The umpire hailed from Walpole, and therefore Camp Newton played under difficulties and was beaten, 10-8. The members of the team are Eaton, Wiley, Giles, Henderson, Livingston, Hunt, Lewis, Leete, and Scott.

In a camp where there are so many amusements there must be a brake or we should run wild. There are a great number of large and very knotty pieces of wood, all equipped with a chopping block and axe—a veritable paradise for boys who are late to meals, who haven't performed their camp duties promptly, and so on. Joel Leete and others are faithful followers of this pastime.

Besides these amusements there are many minor sports, such as checkers, chess, boxing, fighting mosquitoes, trying to make Mr. Kidger let us go fishing, trying to dodge the shower-bath at 5:30 A. M., putting large and muscular bugs in somebody's bed, etc., etc. And so all these things tend to brighten camp life and keep everybody in good spirits, and that is a very important element.

Military Drill at Camp Newton

By "BONE"

(Lester Blair)

As everybody knows, military drill is essential in these trying days. The boys of Camp Newton have not lagged in this direction, and have proven that there are no slackers among them.

Twice each week, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, we assemble for drill in a large field back of the Camp. We have two drill sergeants—Trow and Spaulding. Donald Trow, a sergeant at Colgate University, who has had training at Fort Terry, is First Sergeant. William Spaulding, a student at Harvard, who has had training at the University of Minnesota, is Second Sergeant. Having had the more training, Sergeant Trow has charge of the drilling and has proven himself a competent drill-master.

Corporals have been chosen from among the fellows. Each corporal has charge of a squad of seven privates. We have enough fellows for three squads. "Bub" Eaton, of hockey fame, is corporal of the first squad. The second squad has at its head Horace Boggs, "Bobby" for short. "Squunk" Hunt led the third squad. Our drill for the first few evenings consisted in learning the school of the soldier, such as the facings and the salute. From this we advanced to the school of the squad and learned the different squad movements. Now we are perfecting ourselves in the school of the company, which we find much more difficult than the others. We are drilled according to the manual of the regular army, and we hope soon to be able to train with wooden guns. Who knows but that some time in the near future we shall have to use what we are now learning.

On the Fourth of July we had a flag-raising, when, with appropriate exercises, we raised the national emblem and below it the flag of the state of Massachusetts. While colors were being played by Camp Bugler Robert Perry and while the flags were being raised we stood rigidly at attention and saluted. Then Bruce Stewart played "The Star Spangled Banner" on his cornet.

Recently upon request, we drill on the Common at Walpole before a number of citizens. Major Bellows, an officer who has seen service in Europe and who is at the head of the Walpole Home Guard, complimented us on our efficiency.

It will thus be seen that the boys at Camp Newton are working not merely to supply food to the soldiers now in the field, but to prepare themselves to become soldiers if they shall be needed.

HOME ECONOMICS FOR NEWTON WOMEN

Since war has been declared and we have realized more than ever before the need of conserving our resources, the women of the City have been learning the latest and best methods of canning foods for future use, and taking other courses which will enable them to run their homes more scientifically and economically.

Many women who have taken the special courses which have been conducted for the last four months in the Newton Vocational High School have, in turn, been teaching others, and it is hoped that this work can be extended to every home in the City.

During the last four months, sixteen classes have been conducted and about 350 women and girls, in addition to the regular Vocational School pupils, have received instruction in economical cooking, marketing, canning by the cold pack method, millinery, simple home dressmaking and remodeling of clothing. Women who have taken the canning courses are in charge of Amherst Canning Clubs for the boys and girls of the City. Those in charge are Mrs. Ellery Peabody West Newton; Mrs. Charles E. Valentine, Auburndale; Mrs. Joshua Seaver, Newton Highlands; Miss Dorothy Bell, class for high school girls. Four groups of Girl Scouts are also being instructed by leaders who have been members of the special classes.

We are preparing for the future and every young woman who has not received training along some of these lines should feel it her patriotic duty to take one of the following special courses which it is planned to offer in the fall.

I. Cooking, serving of meals, marketing and household management.
II. Invalid cooking and home nursing.

III. Dietetics.
IV. Plain sewing, home dressmaking, remodeling of clothing, and textiles.

V. Millinery.
In order that the School Committee may know the extent of the demand for this instruction, application should be sent to the Vocational High School office, attention of Miss J. B. Kenrick, before September 10, 1917.

U. G. Wheeler,
Superintendent of Schools.
M. W. Murray,
Director of Vocational Education.

HILLERY—BARTLETT

An extremely pretty home wedding took place August second at 7:30 o'clock when Edith May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Theodore Bartlett of Jackson street, Newton Centre, and Mr. John Hillery, Jr., of Beverly, were united in marriage by Rev. Edgar T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Church.

The bride was attended by her sister, Elizabeth P. Bartlett as maid of honor and Master Kenneth Dowd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Burnham Dowd of West Newton, as ring bearer. Mr. Hillery's best man was Mr. Elbert Davis Bartlett, a brother of the bride.

The bridal party entered the living room to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, which was played by Miss Edna E. Wright of New Bedford. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of chiffon and lace over white satin and carried white sweet peas and a brother of the bride, her veil being caught with the same flowers, while her maid was gowned in pink and white and carried sweet peas of the same color.

The living room and library were simply, but very effectively decorated with palms and pink and white gladioli. The dining room was decorated with pink roses and was presided over by Mrs. Elbert D. Bartlett, a sister of the bride and Mrs. Stanley B. Dowd, assisted by Miss Ruth Bartlett, Miss Elsie Pearson and Miss Elinor Whitinghill. The ushers were Mr. Stanley B. Dowd of West Newton and Mr. Fred Hillery of Beverly.

COPLEY THEATRE—The Henry Jewett Players still continue in "The Man Who Stayed at Home" at the Copley, and are now well along on their third month of this thrilling play of the great war. The interest shown by the public in this gripping drama is just as keen now as it was at the beginning of the opening week. Full to the brim with tense situations and sympathetic appeal, it retains the invigorating touch of comedy, carefully balancing its rapid fire thrills with volleys of laughter. Of particular interest to all Americans in the present crisis, the play brings home to us conditions in England at the outbreak of the great struggle now engulfing the world, such as false security and a tendency to "let the other fellow do it," evidences of which may be discovered over here.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The Liberty Players start next week on their winter tour and thousands will be sorry to have them go. They have been very popular with the patrons of the Park. But the management promises to give its visitors equally entertaining performances for the remainder of the season. Next week Mr. Benson's Colored Troubadours and Sunny South Company will give one of the finest all round comedies and vaudeville ever given in this section. It is some nine years since a colored company played at Norumbega Park and the coming week promises to be a real treat for lovers of darkly singing, dancing and novelties.

MOTHERS' REST

The Mothers' Rest Association has been able to reach a larger number of mothers and children this summer than ever before and finds the need for aid greater than ever. Higher prices cause greater suffering to both mothers and children. Anyone willing to give shoes and stockings, rompers and clothing for children, especially boys, under five years of age, is asked to send such articles to Mrs. H. H. Kendall, 876 Beacon street, Newton Centre, or to send them by mail or otherwise to the Mothers' Rest, 8 High street, Needham Heights.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

Examinations for admission to the Newton High Schools will be held in the Technical High School, Friday, Sept. 7, 1917 at 10 A. M. For further information address H. J. Bresee, 7 Bullard street, Dorchester, Mass.

OPEN AIR CONCERTS

The Playground Department of the City of Newton desires to let the people of Newton know that the concerts and open air dances, which have met with so much approval and which were successful in attracting large crowds of spectators and a great many dancers at each occasion, were made possible by the interest and the enthusiasm of the Ladies Circle of Newton. These ladies not only furnished the money but also their time and personal interest in developing these affairs. They ought to be congratulated on the success of this movement which they initiated; and it is to be hoped that money will be appropriated in the future to continue these out door dances and concerts weekly throughout the summer. It is not only a most wholesome way of getting exercise for the young people who have to spend their days at sedentary work in shops and factories, but it is also a splendid opportunity for raising social standards.

To make the dances more of a success a larger platform is needed and in an effort to secure such a platform the Department is trying to interest a number of societies in contributing money toward such a platform. About five hundred dollars will be needed.

In connection with this it may be of interest to see how one of the largest societies of Newton ladies approved of this work when they forwarded the sum of $75 and the following letter:

Newton Federation of Women's Clubs
June 28, 1917.

Superintendent of Playgrounds:
My dear Sir:

It is a pleasure to send you the enclosed check for seventy-five dollars as a token of our appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered by your Department at our recent Patriotic Fete, also to show our interest in the splendid work you are doing for the city. The Newton Federation wishes the enclosed sum to be used as a "nest egg" for a dancing platform for community purposes. It hopes other organizations may follow with similar gifts, until the desired platform becomes a reality.

Cordially yours,
Mary C. Palmer, President.

Since then another gift of ten dollars from an individual citizen has been received.

Contributions will be gratefully received by the Playground Department.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—A play of naive and delightful humor, refreshingly true sentiment and an unflinching human touch is said to truly describe Edward Peple's latest comedy "Friend Martha" which will re-open the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening, August 20. "Friend Martha" tells the story of a wilful little maiden whom love leads along paths never planned or contemplated by very conservative parents, and although she has many and diverse difficulties to overcome, the young hearts win out, as they have a way of doing, in the end. But it is Martha's manner of rebelling against the decree of her elders, and her masterly playing of the game of "heart's desire", that furnishes developments delightful to the most blasé of theatregoers.

ANOTHER ANNIVERSARY

Three years ago to-day Germany declared war upon Russia and by this declaration unchained the whirlwind which has ever since, with steadily growing fury, beaten upon the world. And now the fourth year of the struggle opens, despite all the changes certain things remain as they were. The issue that was joined on that day between the German people and mankind remains exactly what it was in that hour.

In the three years that have passed the whole depth and breadth of the German spirit has been disclosed. The nation that affirmed there was no law but its own law, no right but that which was established by its own arms and founded upon its selfish interests, has marched from crime to crime logically, inexorably, until "German" has become a term of reproach all over the world and those of German nationality are described and regarded as Huns and as Boches.

A gulf has opened between the German people and the rest of the world that we ourselves are only beginning to be conscious of; a gulf which will remain for years, bringing the weight of shame, of loathing, of detestation long after the guilty have passed from the scene.

And to-day the indictment is worth reviewing for those who would answer the question of why the United States is at war with the German people and why it must continue at war until all that the German people to-day represent is crushed utterly and unmistakably.

When German troops invaded Belgium they attacked the whole body of international law, which was the safeguard of the weak against the strong—the slow gain of civilization in centuries of strife. If this German act could stand, then an end would have been made to all law except that which recognizes only strength and crowns the brute master of all.

But the invasion of Belgium was only an imperial act. When to the invasion of the frontiers there was added the horror of the German march—when women were raped, children murdered, innocent old men slaughtered—for the deed committed in defense of home or honor, but solely that the agony of the few might terrify the many and fear conquer where the sword could not reach—there was added a supreme crime to the list of those few terrible deeds which live as landmarks in human infamy. And after the invasion of Belgium, the shambles of Louvain, there were added the crimes in Northern France. Nothing that the wild Indian had done in a forest, nothing that the savage of the African jungle had done as the expression of his innate barbarism, was left undone by German officers and soldiers and there were deeds which hitherto were only believed possible for the beasts themselves.

But this was only a beginning. Thereafter we had the German airship massacring the women and children in remote and undefended English towns. We had the poison gas launched by the troops who had failed to conquer with all the legalized weapons of war.

And then came the Lusitania, with its hundreds of women and children of neutral and belligerent nationality—American women and children among them—sent to their graves by German officers and sailors. No crime of which modern history gives us a record compares with this in essential brutality, yet it was but a logical extension of the German idea, applauded by Germans of every rank, station, sex.

Since that time we have had a full measure of horrors. The Belgian people who had survived the terrors of the invasion were driven into bondage as African slave raiders once drove their caravans of unfortunates. For neither sex, condition, age was there pity in the German heart of mercy in the German nature.

And, at last, we too, in America are at war with this German thing—with this German peril which menaces our institutions, our lives, the honor of our women, the safety of our civilization. We are at war with it because not to fight it is to permit it to extend its foul and fatal dominion over all the world and to repeat in America the crimes of Belgium and France.

And on this, the opening of the fourth year of the struggle, it is for us, for all of us, as Americans, as the inheritors of a noble tradition and a brave past, to dedicate ourselves to the cause which is our cause—the cause of all men who love liberty, humanity, the law. It is for us to dedicate ourselves to the great service of mankind, which is the destruction of this German threat.

For if it is established in fact that the German can murder, rape, massacre in Belgium and France, with impunity, then there is no safety elsewhere in the world from German violence. There are no frontiers, boundaries, races when one people proclaims it as its own right to kill, plunder, conquer when ever it has a weapon in its hands and a lust in its heart.

It is idle to talk of peace, to argue about provinces, frontiers, colonies, while the German maintains his right to seize what he desires—to kill whom and when he pleases and to abrogate every law, human or divine, which interferes with his appetite or his lust.

And since this is true, let us recognize the fact—let us give of our lives and of our treasure, as we must, recognizing that we fight simply and singly that German spirit, which is essential barbarism, that German idea which is nothing more nor less than the assertion of force as the supreme will and law in human existence.

If we knew defeat were certain, yet we could not choose but to fight this German thing—for while it prevailed life, would be without value. But today, as the fourth year of the struggle opens, we see clearly we have but to persist to win, endure to have done for all time, for our own time and our children's time, with the spirit which is responsible for the destruction of Belgium, for the Lusitania Massacre, with the spirit which has turned half Europe into a desert, and now, while Belgium slave gangs are still driven under the lash and German shells are falling upon Rheims Cathedral, seeks to bargain with the civilized world for a portion of what it has won by defying every law of civilization and of humanity.

The German has openly, loudly, widely proclaimed that Corsica has conquered Gallilee—that the doctrine of Napoleon has prevailed over that of Christ. This is the German spirit, this is the German idea, and its works have been written in blood for all men to see and to know. With this doctrine we Americans cannot compromise. While the Germans hold it the war must go on.

New York Tribune of Aug 1, 1917.

RED CROSS WORK

The Wool Fund of the Newton Branch of the Red Cross is growing but still more contributions are needed in order to be sure that all the workers are kept supplied with wool. Major Grayson Murphy, the commissioner for Europe, has sent to the Red Cross an order calling for a million and a half each of sweaters, mufflers, socks and wristlets. These are to be used not only for our own men in the field but also for the civilian population for whose care we must provide. In the next two months knitters are asked to make special efforts in order that as large an amount of knitted articles as possible may be sent abroad before cold weather sets in. The Newton Branch has a knitting machine, to be in charge of Miss Dorothy Eaves of Newtonville, and it is hoped to have wool enough to keep the machine continually busy. Groups of workers who feel that their output could be increased by the purchase of a machine may receive information in regard to them at the Red Cross Work Room in Temple Hall, Newtonville. Contributions for the Wool Fund should be sent to Mr. George Royal Pulsifer, Treasurer, Newton Branch of the Red Cross, Newton Club, Newtonville.

Workers have been busy at the Red Cross Work Room on surgical dressings, nearly sixty taking part in the work last week, but there is still need and room for many more, and an invitation is issued to the women of all ages of all the Newtons to attend at the Work Room any day except Saturday or Sunday, between ten and one, and help to carry on the work that must be done for the soldiers in the field and the unfortunate civilian sufferers from the cruelties of the war.

There seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to the Red Cross posters which the artists of Newton are asked to design for the use of the local branch of the order. There is to be no competition. Newton artists are asked to send in poster designs as a contribution to Red Cross work, and the posters are to be used to create a greater interest in the work of the order in the Newtons. It is asked that designs be sent in before September 15.

NEW JUDGE APPOINTED

Governor McCall Selects Associate Judge W. F. Bacon for Police Court Vacancy

JUDGE WILLIAM F. BACON

Governor McCall sent to the Executive Council yesterday, the name of Associate Judge William F. Bacon of this city to be the judge of the Newton Police Court, vice Kennedy deceased. The nomination must lie over under the rules for one week, but there is a doubt of favorable action by the Council.

Judge Bacon is a member of one of the oldest families in Newton, his ancestors settling here in 1669. He was born in this city November 27, 1863, and received his education in the Newton Schools, graduating from the High School in 1881. He graduated from Harvard College in 1885 and from the Harvard Law School in 1889 and since that time has practiced law in Boston. He married Miss Bessie M. Sayford and they have two children, a son and a daughter.

Judge Bacon is a director of the Newton Trust Company, a trustee of the Newton Savings Bank, and interested in many other business organizations. He was appointed an associate judge of the Newton Court by Governor Crane.

SMITH—BRIGIT

A Military wedding of interest to Newton Society was solemnized Saturday afternoon at Rockbottom Farm, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellery Bright at South Sudbury when their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Carbrant Bright, was united in marriage to Lieutenant Bulkeley Smith, U. S. R., of Worcester.

The bride made her debut recently at the Brae Burn Country Club and is prominent in social circles in Waltham, Newton, Brookline and Boston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bulkeley Smith of Worcester.

The floral decorations were very elaborate and the living room which was devoted to the ceremony was a bower of pink and white, gorgeous pink gladioli in profuse array of state-like beauty being used for the decorative motif and pedestals joined with festoons of white satin ribbon, and mounted with vases of white asters formed an aisle thru which the bridal procession passed.

The ceremony was performed at half after one, by Rev. Francis E. Webster of Waltham.

The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by Hoppes Orchestra as the bridal party assembled. The bride was given in marriage by her father; she was very charming in a beautiful wedding gown of ivory white satin, court train, and rose point lace, and orange blossoms.

Her tulle veil was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a magnificent full shower of lilies of the valley.

She was attended by Miss Nancy Smith, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and Mrs. George C. R. Grandy of Plainfield, N. Y., as matron of honor; they were effectively gowned in yellow satin with black velvet hats and carried bouquets of blue larkspur. Other attendants of the bride, Mrs. Walter Logan of New York and Miss Sally Gilman of Worcester were gowned in pale blue and carried yellow roses.

The bridegroom was assisted by his brother, Lieutenant Willard Smith, U. S. R., as groomsmen and the ushers were Captain Grant Bowker, Lieutenant Richard K. Hutchins, Lieutenant Gordon Harrower of Worcester, Lieutenant George Sargis and Lieutenant Henry Rogers of Boston, all of whom were in uniform. Earl Smith, the bridegroom's brother, Crompton Smith, a cousin of the bridegroom and William Ellery Bright, Jr., brother of the bride, also acted as ushers.

A large reception was held immediately after the ceremony and a wedding breakfast was served in the dining-room which was resplendent with pink and white floral decorations. A large basket of white asters in combination with pink snap dragon centered the table and the orchestra was in attendance and played for the dancing which followed in the billiard room.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were assisted in receiving their guests by their parents. Mrs. Bright was very handsomely gowned in white embroidered crepe de chine, and Mrs. Smith wore a beautiful gown of gray chiffon.

Guests of social prominence were present from New York, Worcester, Boston, Brookline, Waltham, and the Newtons.

PATRIOTIC GOLF MATCH

Match Play—Best Ball 36 Holes. 18 holes in the morning—play starts at 10 o'clock. 18 holes in the afternoon. Play starts at 2.30. An admission fee of $1.00 will be charged, and badges will be on sale at all sporting goods and department stores.

TAX RATE IS $19.80

Highest Rate in History of City due to Heavy Increase in Expenses

The Assessors announced the tax rate on Wednesday as $19.80, the highest ever made in the history of the city and 90 cents higher than the high water mark of $18.90 of last year.

The increase in rate is due to the large increase in city and state expenses, the city budget being $98,085.75 larger than last year and the state, county and metropolitan expenses being $56,074.27, a total of $154,160.02.

Considerable interest is manifested over the receipts from the state from the new income tax, which was in operation for the first time on intangible personal properties. The personal property valuations of over $28,000,000 last year included both tangible and intangible property and this year the city can only assess on the tangible personal amounting to nearly $9,000,000.

To offset the loss on intangible property, the state guaranteed to refund the city the difference between the taxes assessed on this amount, and the total taxes raised on personal property of both kinds in 1915. This amount, in the neighborhood of $350,000 was increased to $402,552.61 as the share of the city in the excess taxes received by the state from the income assessments. Even so, however, the city will probably lose about $30,000 in revenue, on account of the state using the 1915 valuation as a basis. The 1916 personal showed over a million dollars more than 1915 and if the city had continued to assess personal property in 1917 under the old law, we should probably receive about $430,000 in revenue from this source.

Real estate shows a splendid increase of about $3,000,000 as compared with an increase last year of about $2,000,000 and indicates that the city is continuing to grow in a healthy manner.

EDITORIAL

The tax payers of this city have reason to be pleased at the tax rate of $19.80 just announced this week by the Assessors, for the indications pointed to a much higher figure. The income tax scheme of the state has not worked to the advantage of this city for the credit of about $400,000 from this source from the state treasury, is about 10 per cent less than would have been received if the city had continued to tax all personal property as in years gone by. A large part of this is due to the inequality of the income tax law which requires the credit to the city to be figured on the basis of personal property assessments for 1915, even when the 1916 figures were available. In this way the city loses the amount of revenue, which would have accrued in the yearly increase of personal property valuation. Attention is invited to the heavy increases in the city, state and county appropriations for this year over 1916, and which explain why the rate is increased 90 cents over 1916. The increase of three millions in real estate valuations is worthy of comment, as there has been a remarkable falling off the past year in new buildings in the city. All in all therefore, the city has done very well indeed.

After months of hard work in recruiting and equipping, as well as contributing liberally to Company funds for possible luxuries, there is good reason for persons interested in the personnel and future of Company C of the Fifth Regiment, to be indignant at orders which split this company up into two parts, and merging one portion into the ranks of a company from a not over desirable part of the state. Just why the Fifth Regiment was merged with the Ninth, instead of having the Ninth merged with the Fifth is one of these things which no one seems able to explain. The Fifth Regiment is fully recruited. It is said that the Ninth is not so well recruited or organized, so it would seem more reasonable to have the Fifth Regiment form the nucleus of the new organization, rather than the Ninth. The division of the local Company will certainly reduce the great interest which has been aroused up to the present time, and will probably make itself felt in many other ways.

The announced purpose of the War Department to appeal to the District Boards, all cases of exemption allowed, and the probable appeal which will be made by drafted men, if the Local Boards refuse their claims for discharge, raises the interesting question, as to the reason for having the Local Boards act, if every case is to go up to the District Board. There certainly is little reason for the Local Board to spend much time over these claims, under all the circumstances.

Chief Inspector Fletcher of the Police Department, retired from active service with the knowledge of long, faithful and efficient service and the gratitude of the entire community for the good work he has done for over a generation.

Governor McCall has made an admirable appointment in promoting Associate Judge William F. Bacon to the post occupied by Judge Kennedy. Judge Bacon has all the qualities to fill this most important office to the satisfaction of the entire community.

Every man in Newton can afford to "come across" with $2.00 for the Wool Fund of the Newton Red Cross. All together now.

FATAL ACCIDENT

Patrick J. McCarthy, residing on Border street, West Newton was fatally injured in a traffic accident which took place Saturday afternoon about two o'clock near the State armory on Washington street, West Newton. McCarthy was riding behind Joseph H. Goodman of Lowell avenue, Newtonville, when the tire burst and he was thrown over Goodman's head to the street, receiving such injuries that when he reached the Hospital he was dead. He was 35 years of age and is survived by a widow and four small children, who are to be in straightened circumstances. A requiem mass was celebrated at St. Bernard's Church, Tuesday morning by Rev. Fr. Cronin and the burial was at Waltham.

CAPT. COBB BURIED

The funeral services for the late Capt. Morton E. Cobb, who was accidentally killed last week, were held Sunday afternoon at his late residence on Lake avenue, Newton Centre, and state and military organizations joined with his many friends to pay tribute to his memory. The services were in charge of Rev. Edward M. Noyes, D. D., pastor of the First Church, and a male quartet sang "Abide With Me," "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer My God To Thee."

The active bearers were members of Company C, 5th Regiment, N. G. M. of Newton, under Sergt. Walter G. Barrows. The honorary bearers were H. P. Bradford, Gen. James G. White, William M. Flanders, William B. Merrill, Edward B. Stratton, Capt. Franklin Burnham, Charles L. Smith of Newton Centre, and Arnold Scott of Dedham, and Lieut. Col. W. L. Sanborn and Lieut. Col. Wm. C. Rogers. Taps were sounded and a volley was fired by a squad from Co. C, 5th Regiment, over the grave in Newton Cemetery.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—A play of naive and delightful humor, refreshingly true sentiment and an unusually human thought truly described, Edward Peple's latest comedy "Friend Martha," which will begin its second week at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening, August 27, a welcome relief from the drama of crooks and crime, mixed marriage relations and sudden death that has been having its innings too long a time. "Friend Martha" tells the story of a willful little maiden whom love leads along paths never planned or contemplated by very conservative parents, and although she has many the young hearts win out, as they have a way of doing, in the end. It is Martha's manner of rebelling against the decrees of her elders, and her mastery playing of the game of "heart's desire," that furnishes developments delightful to the most blasé of theatre-goers.

DEATH OF MR. HURTER

Mr. John C. Hurter, one of the pioneer travelling men in the wholesale dry goods business, died quite suddenly last Saturday at his home on Centre street, Newton Highlands. Mr. Hurter was for many years in the dry goods business in Boston, and was one of the first men to attempt to reach the trade of the middle west. In 1901 he became a member of the firm of Wilson, Larrabee & Co., and when that dissolved associated himself with the firm of Blodgett, Ordway & Webster. He was born at Beirut, Syria, and was 72 years of age. Mr. Hurter was a member of Aberdour Lodge of Masons of Boston and resided for many years in Hyde Park, coming to Newton about a year ago. He is survived by a widow, two sons, Mr. Charles S. Hurter of Wilmington, Delaware and Mr. Frank O. Hurter of Newton Highlands and one daughter, Mrs. Fred R. Hayward of Newton Highlands.

Funeral services were held from his late home on Centre street on Monday afternoon, Rev. William Ewart, rector of Christ Church, Boston, officiating and Miss Miriam Bates was the soloist. Burial was at Forest Hill.

TO LOSE ITS IDENTITY

There is wide spread indignation in this city and in the ranks of Company C, Fifth Regiment, over the recent order to consolidate with the Ninth Regiment, reorganizing the new army which is expected to cross the Atlantic before many weeks have gone. The order requires 100 men, and probably the 150 men of Company C of the Ninth Regiment, making a new company C, of 250 men, which will be assigned to what will be known as the 101st Regiment. Capt. Cornerais and 50 men of Company C will be retained to help in the organization of the army now being recruited thru the draft.

COPLEY THEATRE—The Henry Jewett Players are now on their twelfth and last week of the great play of the present war, "The Man Who Stayed at Home" at the cool Copley, where they are still playing to crowded houses. Dealing as it does with conditions in England at the outbreak of the war, it depicts vividly the general unpreparedness of the country and the resulting hysteria. Treating with the vital problems of enlistments and espionage, it brings home to us in America conditions of importance which must be solved. The play itself is a stirring combination of comedy and melo-drama, carefully balancing its rapid-fire thrills with volleys of laughter, which sends one away refreshed and entertained. The management announces that the theatre will close after the evening performance, Saturday, September 1, and will reopen for the regular fall season October 1, between which dates extensive alterations will be made in the theatre.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"His Little Widows," which has had a successful premiere at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, is probably in for a long stay here, for it's the sort of musical comedy that makes one forget their troubles of every-day life. The book is tuneful and joyous. With an exceedingly clever cast, headed by Carter De Haven, aided and abetted by a group of pretty chorus girls who know how to sing and dance, this musical comedy has everything that goes to make a success. If bright lines, innumerable funny situations, a very capable cast and a stageful of pretty girls mean anything His "Little Widows" has the stuff that keeps the box-office men busy. The third big week begins next Monday evening, August 27th. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

 —Mrs. Henry H. Fanning reports progress in the Red Cross work, and asks all who can to take in knitting at once as the call is urgent. Remember the boys go to camp September 5th. Let us take hold with a will, do all we can, and return the work as soon as it is finished.

—The Children's Bazaar, planned for September 15th, will be postponed until sometime in October. It is thought that the change in date will make the event more of a financial success. In place of the Bazaar on September 15th, there will be a field day by the children in the playground and a specially arranged program at the Auditorium in the evening.

—The recent electrical storm did no damage in the Falls, other than delay its girls from getting home from their work in Needham. Cars were off the track, trains had a wash-out and it was not for the fact that the passing motors gave the girls lifts, it would be hours before they reached home. The motorists were very chivalrous and many came back a second and third time.

WANTED: ONE THOUSAND "COME-ACROSSERS"

Newton's share of the order that has come to the American Red Cross for a million and a half of sweaters, mufflers, wristlets, helmets and pairs of socks is at the lowest one thousand of each.

The Newton Branch of the Red Cross is ready to supply material to the women who are willing to knit the articles asked for and all that it is necessary for women to do to secure yarn is to make application at the Red Cross Headquarters at the Newton Club or of the Special Aid.
The Newton Red Cross will give out wool just as long as the Wool Fund, which thanks the generous contributors it has holds out, but if it is to supply all the wool which it hopes will be asked for it must have a far greater Wool Fund than it has and have it at once.

The yarn that goes into a winter sweater costs about $2.00 so that any one able to multiply $2.00 by 1000 may easily determine the amount needed to buy the yarn for the sweater part of the order that Newton ought to fill to say nothing at all of the mufflers, helmets, wristlets, and socks, and all of them are needed if our soldiers are to be made as comfortable as they ought to be made.

The women of Newton are doing their part in the Red Cross work, and doing it patiently and persistently.
Many of them have not only knit and turned in many articles but have paid for the yarn used out of their own pockets. All through the recent fearful hot spell they worked hard at getting surgical dressings and bandages and five days in the week many of them are busy at the Red Cross Work Room in the Masonic Building in Newtonville where all women willing to work are welcome and where competent instructors are ready to teach the beginners. In other parts of Newton and in other groups the women also are hard at work. They are willing to work but they must have material to work with and material costs money. Some one has got to supply the money. It is in the supplying of the money with which to buy materials that the men, who for one reason or another, are staying at home instead of getting ready to go to the front, have the opportunity to do something to help win the war and to shorten it. Soldiers who do not suffer from the cold can fight better than those who do suffer and the man who helps to keep a soldier as comfortable as he can be is doing something towards winning the war.

The Newton Red Cross believes there are in Newton 1000 or more stay-at-home men who will sit down and send in at once $2.00, or more, apiece to its Wool Fund. Are you one of them? Compared with what the fellows who are going to the front are prepared to give $2.00 is not very much to ask from a man who is staying at home and who will not be exposed to the rigors of a winter in the open. If there are in Newton 600 men who are willing to be "Come-Acrossers" and who will come across at once with $2.00 each it will give the Red Cross Wool Fund a welcome and needed lift—a lift it needs now, today. If you are willing to be a
"Come-Acrosser" send in your check for $2.00 now. Make it payable to George Royal Pulsifer, Treasurer and send it to him at the Red Cross Headquarters, Newton Club, Newton-ville. After you have sent in your own check see if you can not get some other stay-at-home to do the same so that the Newton Red Cross may not have to keep begging for money to buy wool to keep our boys at the front comfortable. If you happen to hear some man say "I wish I were going to the front" say to him
"If I could," ask him if he has sent in his contribution to the Wool Fund of the Newton Red Cross. Tell him that wishing "to be at the front" is a very easy thing to do but that wishing is not going to win the war. Contribution to Red Cross funds is tamer than charging and taking trenches but it is a very necessary part of winning the war and it is the most practicable and telling way in which the men at home can do their part. If the men of Newton will supply the funds to buy the yarn the women of Newton will see to it that the wool is used.

Newton like all other American cities and towns has got to be waked more than it is to the conditions we must face and the work that must be done and to help the wakening the Newton Red Cross still asks from the artists of the city designs for posters to carry home to the people of the city what the Red Cross is and what it is trying to do. Poster boards for use in making the posters may be had at the Red Cross Headquarters at the Newton Club or at the Red Cross Work Room, Masonic Building, Newtonville. For these boards the Newton Red Cross has printed matter which may be used as part of the poster and which will leave a space of 14x12 inches for the design, or the artist may use the whole board for his design and his or her own lettering.
Artists may use other boards if they wish, what is wanted is posters that will carry home the Red Cross message, its need for workers and for funds. Designs ought to be in by September 15. Those who wish further information may obtain it by addressing Poster, Red Cross Headquarters, Newton Club, Newtonville.

DEATH OF MRS. GILL

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Gill, wife of Mr.
Arthur E. Gill of West Newton, passed away Monday, August 20th, after a short illness. The deceased was prominently identified with the West Newton Unitarian Church, was a member of the Woman's Alliance, and took an active interest in all good work which enlisted her sympathies.
She is survived by her husband, and one son, Mr. Fletcher L. Gill of West Newton.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at her late residence on Lenox street, and a most impressive service was conducted at 1:45, by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, pastor of the Unitarian Church.
"Eternal Goodness," "The End of A Perfect Day," and other sacred selections were rendered by a male quartet. A wealth of beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem of her many friends.
The remains were taken to Hingham for burial in the Gill family lot in the Hingham Cemetery.

FORMAL GOWN.

Gorgeous Creation For the Season's Evening Wear.

BEAUTIFUL LINES.

Fashioned of black chiffon velvet,
cut to fall in naturally graceful folds,
and a long, square train, this handsome frock also takes a shoulder drape of silver lace, which is held by a huge rhinestone garniture. The butterfly effect of the lace is especially effective.

SAVE YOUR IRISH CROCHET.

This Lace Is Coming Into Vogue Again With Spring.

Have you heard the news? Irish crochet is coming back into favor for all sorts of things—lingerie blouses, neckwear and even frock trimming. It isn't used exactly as it used to be, but any one possessing one of those lovely large, round Dutch collars or a set of collar and cuffs is fortunate in that she can turn the collar and cuffs into something entirely different without cutting the lace.

For chemise tops and nightgown
yokes the Irish crochet is indeed lovely.
Two of those old time "chocker" collars could be utilized to set in the back and the front of either garment.
If you do not possess such things as chocker collars watch the little lace shops, which deal in such articles. You may be able to strike a bargain.

A round collar can be set in as a round yoke in a nightgown, with cuffs to match as finishes for the short ki-mona sleeves. Sometimes cuffs can be used as shoulder straps on a chemise, with the round collar set in as a motif.
On blouses the Irish lace collar can be used in a bolero effect, for a vest, revers, bib or little coatee, depending entirely on the cut and shape.

On frocks the uses of Irish lace are legion. On such fabrics as linens, organdies and velvets for spring and summer wear Irish collars can be used to outline deep pockets, in bib effects, to define panels and apron fronts, to edge deeper collars and in the same ways as they are used on blouses.

If you have some fine piece of this once popular lace stored away get it out and start to bleach it in the frost so that you will have it all fresh and ready to use when spring sewing starts in.

New Blouses.

Some of the latest blouses are singularly soft and graceful. A few fashioned from black net over white are made with a few perpendicular tucks, the sleeves full to the wrist, with a frill falling over the hand. Even the crope de chine blouses are, many of them, made with a pointed piece falling from the wristband over the hand, the blouse itself opening in a V form at the neck, the edge with an open hemstitch about an inch wide. Brown is a fashionable blouse color, and brown chiffon tucked and worn over gold net is altogether charming. Vivid coloring, even in the embroideries, is not now the first fashion. The soft silk ones are wrought in dull shades, but are all the more effective for their subdued hues.

Hush! A Garter Purse.

If you are addicted to the bad habit of carrying your valuables and money with you wherever you go you should provide yourself with one of the new garter purses. They are made of two pockets, one large for jewels the other small for money, and both attached to straps to buckle tightly around the leg below the knee. They come in all shades of satin.

A Delightful Combination.

Speaking of satin slip over blouses, what do you think of this costume? It is a slip over blouse of dark blue satin smocked in the shoulders with white silk and showing a novel collar and cuffs of white satin. It is worn with a box pleated white flannel skirt. Sounds stunning, doesn't it?

AT NORUMBEGA PARK

The latest and most up to date minstrel company in the country will be the attraction at this popular park next week, commencing Monday afternoon. "The All White Minstrel Company" includes Lee, Plant & Timmons, Moran & Burke, Lewis & Lewis, Oscar Noel, all recognized as the best known stars in minstrelsy, and several other entertaining artists and fine singers. In addition to the great array of talent, this company uses the handsomest first part setting and more novel electrical effects than any other minstrel organization. Moving cloud effects, riffling waters and a wonderful surprise effect are among the scenic novelties promised.

WILBUR THEATRE—"Oh, Boy!"
the fourth New York Princess Theatre musical comedy success is having a joyous run at Ye Wilbur Theatre and is breaking all records at that house.
The title of this musical comedy is appropriate in its indication of delight for both the critics and public agree that "Oh, Boy!" is some show and even better than its predecessors "Nobody Home" and "Very Good Eddie." The lyrics are deftly rhymed, singable and brightly amusing and often wittily satirical. Miss Helen Shipman, both as an actress and singer, has established herself as a favorite and she plays the part of Jackie Sampson, a gay young lady of the footlights with irresistible vivac-ity and dances with agility and grace.
Miss Eileen Wilson is girlishly ingenious and lovable as the newlywed and George Compton impersonates the husband with boyish charm. The dance by Miss Ethel Ford and Mr.
Bryan is one of the most beautiful things in "Oh, Boy." The chorus includes a stunning collection of young beauties.

BOOKLET ON STORAGE

Growing crops are not all that our farmers and gardeners must do in order to keep starvation from our shores and defeat Germany. The crops must be preserved in some way so that a steady and ample supply of food will be available over the whole year.

To accomplish this end, the preservation of food by canning and drying is, of course, essential. Large quantities of food, however, notably, turnips, beets, carrots, potatoes, parsnips, onions, squash, cabbage, apples and peas, may be stored in the raw state, and the State Board of Agriculture has just published a pamphlet (Circular No. 75), which treats in detail of the common storage of fruits and vegetables. The circular is written by Edward Howe Forbush and tells briefly and clearly about House and Cellar Storage, Storage in Barn Cellar, Storage in Root Cellar, Ditch Storage, Storage in Outdoor Pits, Surface Storage, and the Special Care of Certain Products. The circular will be sent free to anyone writing to State Board of Agriculture, 136 State House, Boston, Mass. Ask for Circular 75.

The above nominations indicate that Representative Jarvis, who ran as an independent Democrat last year, will be opposed by Mr. Leland Powers, as it is most probable that Representatives Allen and Weston will not be affected by Mr. Powers' candidacy.

An interesting feature of Mr. Tierney's nomination is the fact that he has just been drafted for service in the national army.

THE HORROR OF IT

Why is it I cannot write of blossomed fields today,
Of white clouds past a far-off hill, and little folks at play
Where bending boughs make coolness and white clover blossoms grow tall,
And sun-flecks show beneath the trees, and older children call
To one another as they run? My children need not fear;
The foe that slaughters little folks is far away from here;

And they may sleep at night secure with their sweet "day-me's" said,
And know the slightest sound will bring their daddy to their bed,
Because I know that in a town not very far away
Two children from wrecked Belgium are learning to play,
With just red stumps where once they were the gladder little hands—
Oh, baby hands! A mother or a father understands.

The sweetness of a baby's hands, the comfort that they bring,
How they hold parent hearts clasped tight and teach a soul to sing—
The soldiers of the Kaiser hacked the hands from each wee wrist,
The tender hands, the clinging hands a mother's lips had kissed.

Because—oh, well—such things are war—if left unmaimed they might Have raised their hands against Germany, might some day dare to fight Against the Kaiser, so the little hands were hacked away—
And so today I cannot write of little folks at play

In blossomed fields and on far hills; I want to get and hold
My Sister Girl close to my heart, and reach for Locks of Gold
And hold her tight against my breast and never let her go,
And never let them leave my sight while earth holds such a foe.

I saw a picture yesterday—a picture from the town
Where little children were at play when German bombs rained down
Or little children maimed and torn—with crippled forms and lives—
And now, though honey-laden bees fly homeward to their hives,
And mocking birds sing aloud, and there is laughter in the hall,
And Silver Girl and Locks o' Gold send the glad daddy-call,

I cannot write of things they love—of white clouds overhead—
For I see children maimed and torn, and mothers lying dead.

There's a man in the world who is never turned down

He gets the glad hand in the populous town,

THE MESSAGE OF THE FLAG

By W. H. Walsh

I am the Flag that waves for you,
Thou weakest man of all that work;
I am your largest dreams come true,
Oh, darling minds who never shrink.
The Constitution am I, too,
The Courts and Statutes I pursue.
O'er statute makers I have power,
O'er soldiers, sailors, every hour;
O'er farmer, counselor and clerk,
O'er all who strive in Freedom's work
O'er dreadnoughts, battle ships and fleet,
O'er merchant ships that sail the deep.

I am the victory of to-day,
The awful roar of yesterday,
I am the myst'ry of life,
The glory of the nation's strife;
My stars and stripes are all for you,
Your hopes, your dreams, and prayers are too;

Your one best hope, when danger's nigh,
Columbia's soul in truth am I.

LOCAL MILITIA LOSES INDENTITY

Is Now Part of Company C. of the 101st Infantry National Guard

Company C, Fifth Regiment has passed into history and Newton now has no exclusive claim to any military organization. As will be seen from the letter printed below, the Company was merged with Company C. of the former Ninth Regiment and is now known as Company C. of the 101st Regiment of the National Guard. All of the Newton Company with the exception of 11 sergeants, 1 private and 2 cooks have been taken over and together with men from South Boston constitutes one of the recently enlarged companies on the European plan. Captain Cormerais and Lieutenants Barrows and Edmunds have also been assigned to the 101st Regiment but at present have not been attached to any particular company. As Company C has been in charge of a First Lieutenant, at least until very recently, there is a possibility that Capt. Cormerais may be assigned to Company C and thus have charge of his own men again.

Aug. 23, 1917.

C. Company has passed through its first experience of the war by transferring one hundred men to C Company, 101st U. S. Infantry, formerly the Ninth Mass. Inf.

While it was to be expected that officers would be switched from their commands it was hardly possible that such a movement as has taken place would happen. While it was a great shock to the men who had to go, it was probably a greater one to the Company Commander, Captain H. D. Cormerais, who was obliged, in accordance with orders, to break up his company and send his men to another organization.

When the news became official on Monday night, it was a pretty blue camp. Officers were unable to restrain their feelings. Tuesday morning it became bluer. C Company responded cheerfully. No man regardless of how he felt, left the company street until the company was formed at 2.30, at which time 100 men, selected, escorted by those who were to remain, marched under the company commander to the Ninth camp where they joined the new organization. Captain Cormerais remained with the 101st until the evening and will be with them, more or less, during the next two or three days. While it was a hard blow to lose the men who had enlisted and trained for C Company still the fact that they are going to represent the city in the first regiment that is up to war strength is an honor.

It was with great difficulty that the company commander decided, owing to the large number of men ordered, just who would remain behind and in filling his orders he picked the men who were most valuable for future duty. As far as possible, men from the same family were sent together and no favoritism was shown in any case.

The Company Commander deeply appreciates how the members' families must feel but is certain that no one can be blamed for it. Wednesday the work of checking the property was started. Captain Cormerais had an opportunity to observe the men of his old company and he found them rapidly settling into routine of their new position. There seems to be no discontent and he is very sure that the men of old C Company will give a fine report of themselves as they always have done in the past.

It is expected that both Lieutenant Barrows and Edmunds will leave shortly to go to the 101st.

The names of the men who have been transferred are as follows:

RED CROSS WORK

More Money Needed for Wool. Newton Centre Branch Has New Home

Since Spring there has been sold to Newton women who have called at the Newton Red Cross headquarters nearly $700's worth of wool. Besides the women who bought this wool other women, connected with the Special Aid and kindred groups, have bought other hundreds of dollars worth of wool. All of this yarn has been knitted into comforts for soldiers already in the field, or about to go there, for sailors and for civilian sufferers from the cruelties of war. The women of Newton have given not only of their money but also of time and work and they are still giving and ready to continue to give and to work.

The Newton Red Cross Wool Fund has a few hundred dollars given by generous contributors in answer to its appeals but the amount it has received has been made up mostly by liberal contributions by a very few and not by small contributions from the many. What the Wool Fund needs is contributions from hundreds of men who are willing to be "Come-Acrossers" and by giving to the Wool Fund to do in this way something towards winning the war. Every man in Newton ought to serve his country at this time either by going to the front or by helping by the giving of money to be used for the care and the comfort of those who are going. There are probably very few men who would not gladly give $2 at once to keep a soldier from suffering from the cold. The pity of it is they do not wake up to the need of giving at once, to the need of their enlisting now as "Come-Acrossers" by sending check, or bills, to Mr. George Royal Pulsifer, Treasurer, Newton Branch of the Red Cross, Newton Club, Newtonville, to be used for buying wool for women to knit into soldier comforts. Almost every reader of this knows men, young and old, who talk valiantly of what they would like to do in this war but ask them to see how few have contributed to the Red Cross Wool Fund. This combination of being ready to talk and slow to do is not peculiar to Newton, it is nation-wide and stirred Collier's Weekly to the printing of this editorial in its last issue:

"A cartoon by the Frenchman Forain, made in 1915, sums up the actual situation with all its flying rumors of peace without victory. In this drawing one sees two privates in the trenches, talking over a newspaper. Says one soldier: 'It's all right if they hold out!' The other asks: 'If who holds out?' And the first again: 'Why, the civilians, of course!' The men of the French and British armies have done, and will do, their part. So will the men of the American armies—old and new. But we civilians? Have we the moral courage, the essential tenacity, the enduring toughness, without which nationalism, socialism, idealism of any kind, are but cheap rhetoric, and suffering at the battle front only criminal waste?"

The men must wake up. They must give something at once to the Wool Fund. In order that they may know what the needs are here is an order sent out to all branches of the Red Cross of the Northeastern Division:

"The demands at present being made on the Red Cross for helmets, sweaters, mufflers, wristers and all kinds of knitted goods are imperative and insistent, especially on the Navy. At present writing the need for helmets is particularly acute. It does not seem reasonable to suppose that we will ever need as many helmets as we do sweaters, mufflers and wristers. but for the present moment we need helmets as our supply of them is practically exhausted. Many ships are leaving home waters for foreign service. We consequently expect these demands to continue and on top of them will soon come the demands of the new National Army. Approximately forty thousand soldiers of this new Army will be camped at Ayer, Mass. for the coming winter months.

DEPENDENCY ONLY

Married Men Must Prove Dependency to Obtain Draft Exemptions

Mr. Mark Wiseman of New York city, a son-in-law of Dr. Fred M. Lowe of West Newton has endeavored to obtain first hand information in regard to the status of married men and the draft. Mr. Wiseman wrote a strong letter to Provost General Crowder in regard to this question in behalf of married men who are conscientiously bearing their responsibilities and who believe that circumstances do not yet demand their presence in the army. He states that "time and circumstances are bound to alter cases, but at present the preservation of homes and family relationships is at least paramount in its value to the nation with the raising of an army. The time may come when families will have to be broken up and homes destroyed in order to bring victory, but that time has not yet arrived. The time may come when this sacrifice may be necessary and desirable, but the interests of the nation seem to me to be best served by at once raising an army and preserving the home. This can be done, at least, for the present, by excusing responsible married men as a class, whatever their station in life, whatever their income, be it dependent or the result of their own labor, from service in the draft army."

General Crowder replied to the effect that a Congress has deliberately elided the provision exempting married men and made the determinate question one of dependency, and not of relation, no executive or administrative authority could legally make any ruling that would cause local boards to look aside from the question of actual dependency and that as an administrator he could not do that which Congress as a legislative body, refused to do.

Hon. Charles E. Hughes, chairman of the District Board for the city of New York replied in a similar vein saying that "it is impossible to discharge married men as a class without regard to questions of dependency."

Mr. Wiseman has also, an autographic letter from President Wilson, to the effect that it would not be wise for him to make a public statement about the matter and assuring him "that the War Department is not at all inclined to be harsh or neglectful of the important consideration you so earnestly urge."

BRAE BURN CLUB

The most important event of the week at Brae Burn will be the Patriotic Golf Match on Saturday, which will be given for the benefit of the Red Cross. It will be between Jerome D. Travers-Oswald Kirby of New York vs. Francis Oulmet-Jesse Guilford of Boston. Play starts at 10 A. M.

Mr. E. Winthrop Batchelder of Weston, is house guest at Brae Burn. Mr. William Estabrook Jones spent the week end at his summer home at Wianno.

EDITORIAL

Representative Jarvis has considerable assurance, to say the least, in asking the Republicans of this city for the party nomination for Representative at the coming primary. For not only did Mr. Jarvis bolt the regular Republican nominee for representative at the last state election, but, in order to insure his own election as an independent, greatly increased the Democratic vote for president, governor and the entire state ticket thru his efforts, in Democratic strongholds, to elect himself. Mr. Jarvis' Republicanism goes no further than to obtain office for himself and the loyal members of the party should administer a stinging rebuke to such methods at the primary by voting for Mr. Leland Powers.

The departure this week and next of the National Guard and the gathering of the draft army at Ayer, ought to bring home to every man, woman and child, the sad fact that these United States are at WAR. God grant that this realization may not involve the death of sons and brothers who leave us in the flush of manhood, and primed for the Great Adventure.

The law governing the shooting of gray squirrels ought to be suspended for the next few weeks in order to protect the crops of corn and the fruit on which these destructive animals are now feeding. All the expense and effort put into growing vegetables and fruits this year ought not to be thrown away by any sentiment about squirrels.

DON'T KILL THE LADY GOOSE WITH THE GOLDEN EGG PROCLIVITIES

By Homer McKee,
Advertising Manager, Premier Motor Corporation

There was once a perfectly good goose who had it on every other goose.

This perfectly good goose, somehow or other, possessed the knack of laying golden eggs.

And the beauty of it was that there seemed to be no limit to the number of golden eggs she could lay. She wasn't a union goose—and she didn't kick on working overtime.

When occasion demanded she could lay a perfect stream of golden eggs. She had a sort of Lewis machine-gun egger.

This wonderful goose did her work so well that she became the pet of a great nation.

Now, it befell, that, on a fateful day, the great nation got into an almighty expensive war—

And the Treasury bins of the high council were sorely pressed.

"Bring forth the golden goose," cried the Lord of the Exchequer. "She can produce all the gold that we need."

But while the attendants were going to get the Golden Goose, to bring her before the Lord of the Exchequer, a great cry arose:

"The submarines are going to starve out our Allies."

"This war will last forever!"

"Everybody is going to get killed!"

"We must eat only hush and excelsior!"

"We must not smile! We must not hope! The very devil is to pay!"

So shouted the foolish ones who waited outside the Treasury.

And when they dragged the Golden Goose into the presence she was quaking pitiously, and to the consternation of those assembled it was discovered that something terrible had happened to her. There was nothing doing in the egg department.

THE POOR BIRD COULD NOT BRING HERSELF TO LAY GOLDEN EGGS WHEN SHE WAS FRIGHTENED.

This is a good story for those who are trying to get money out of American Business with one hand and scaring the living lights out of it with the other.

IT SIMPLY CANNOT BE "DID."

TWOBBLY HOUSE

War or no War, Newton will not neglect her home problems. The group of women who have already accomplished so much at Twobbly House are determined that the needs of this work shall be met during the coming Winter. As a means to this end they are planning a Lawn Fete and Fair, to be held September 25th, on the Estate at 33 Lake Avenue, formerly owned by Mr. D. H. Andrews. A more beautiful spot could hardly be found in the City, and the present owner, Mr. J. S. Cordingley, has kindly given its use for this occasion.

PICNIC

A very enjoyable event of last week was the picnic on Wednesday for the School Garden Children which was given under the direction of the Public Safety Committee of Newton.

About 175 children from the various Newtons were conveyed by automobiles and special cars to Lexington park, where an entertaining program was arranged for them.

It included interesting lectures on cold pack canning and other instructive features.

The affair was in charge of Mr. Alfred MacDonald and the Garden supervisor.

No. 4. Shifted to the Somme

By Sergeant Alexander McClintock,
D. C. M., 87th Overseas Bati., Canadian Gren. Guards.

Copyright, 1917, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

Sergeant McClintock is an American boy of Lexington, Ky., who has seen service in France, was decorated for bravery, wounded, invalided home and now is returning to accept a commission. This is the fourth article in the series. In the first article he told of his training up to the point where he reached the front line trenches. In the second he outlined the elaborate preparations for a bomb raid, and in the third the disastrous raid was described.

A FEW days after the bombing raid, which ended so disastrously for us, our battalion was relieved from duty on the front line, and the tip we got was that we were to go down to the big show then taking place on the Somme. Our relief was a division of Australians. You see, the sector which we had held in Belgium was a sort of preparatory school for the regular fighting over in France. It wasn't long before we got into what you might call the big league contest, but in the meanwhile we had a little rest from battling Fritz and the opportunity to observe some things which seem to me to be worth telling about. Those of you who are exclusively fond of the stirring detail of war, such as shooting and being shot at and bombing and bayoneting, need only skip a little of this. We had an entirely satisfactory amount of smoke and excitement later.

As soon as our relief battalion had got in we moved back to Poperinghe for a couple of days' rest. We were a pretty contented and jovial lot, our platoon especially. We were all glad to get away from the strain of holding a front trench, and there were other advantages. For instance, the alterations had not come through battalion headquarters, and therefore we had in our platoon sixty-three run rations night and morning and only sixteen men.

That was last August, and the allies haven't broken through yet. Eventually I believe they will break through, but in my opinion men who are drawn for service in the first half million of our new American army will be veterans in Europe before the big break comes which will wreck the Prussian hope of success in this war. And if we of the U. S. A. don't throw in the weight to beat the Prussians now they will not be beaten, and in that case the day will not be very far distant when we will have to beat them to save our homes and our nation. War is a dreadful and inglorious and ill smelling and cruel thing. But if we hold back now we will be in the logical position of a man hesitating to go to grips with a drunken, savage, shrieking, spewing maniac who has all but whipped his proper keepers and is going after the onlooker. However, I wish we had had two months more of weather on the Somme. There might have been a different story to tell.

Simplified Medicine.
We got drafts of recruits before we went to the Somme, and some of our wounded men were sent back to England, where we had left our "safety first battalion." That was really the Fifty-first battalion of the Fourth division of the Canadian forces, composed of the physically rejected, men recovering from wounds and men injured in training. The Tommies, however, called it the "safety first" or "Major Gilday's Light Infantry." Major Gilday was our battalion surgeon. He was immensely popular, and he achieved a great name for himself. He made one realize what a great personal force a doctor can be and what an unnecessary elaboration there is in the civil practice of medicine.

Under Major Gilday's administration no man in our battalion was sick if he could walk, and if he couldn't walk there was a reasonable suspicion that he was drunk. The major simplified medicine down to an exact science of two forms of treatment and two remedies—"number nines" and whole oil. "Number nines" were pale oval pills, which, if they had been eggs, would have run about eight to an omelet for six persons. They had an internal tie was told me by one of our men, who said he was there when it began. He said one of the Australians had carelessly remarked that the British generals had decided it was time to get through with the sideshow in Belgium, and this was the reason why they had sent regular troops like the Australians in to relieve the Canadians. Then some sensitive Canadian wished the Australians luck and hoped they'd finish it up as well as they had the affair in the Dardanelles. After that our two days' rest was made up principally of beating it out of estaminas when strategic requirements suggested a new base or beating it into estaminas when it looked as if we could act as efficient re-enforcements. That fight never stopped for forty-eight hours, and the only places it didn't include were the church and the hospitals. I'll bet to this day that the Belgians who run the estaminas in Poperinghe will duck behind the bars if you just mention Canada and Australia in the same breath.

But I'm bound to say that it was good, clean fighting. Nobody fired a shot, nobody pulled a bayonet, and nobody got the wrong idea about anything. The Australian heavyweight champion who landed on me went right into the street and saluted one of our lieutenants. We had just one satisfying reflection after the fight was over—the Australian battalion that relieved us felt heir to the counterattack which the Germans sent across to even up on our bombing raid.

Down to the Somme.

We began our march to the Somme by a hike to St. Omer, the first British headquarters in Europe. Then we stopped for a week about twenty miles from Calais, where we underwent a course of intensified training for open fighting. The infantry tactics, in which we were drilled, were very similar to those of the United States army, those which, in fact, were originated by the United States troops in the days of Indian fighting. We covered most of the ground around Calais on our stomachs in open order. While it may seem impertinent for me, a mere non-com, to express an opinion about the larger affairs of the campaign, I think I may be excused for saying that the war didn't at all take the course which was expected and hoped for after the fight on the Somme. Undoubtedly the allies expected to break through the German line. That is well known now. While we were being trained near Calais for open warfare a very large force of cavalry was being assembled and prepared for the same purpose. It was never used.

That was last August, and the allies haven't broken through yet. Eventually I believe they will break through, but in my opinion men who are drawn for service in the first half million of our new American army will be veterans in Europe before the big break comes which will wreck the Prussian hope of success in this war. And if we of the U. S. A. don't throw in the weight to beat the Prussians now they will not be beaten, and in that case the day will not be very far distant when we will have to beat them to save our homes and our nation. ### DUTY

By Winifred Virginia Jordan

A man once slung to his shoulder
A duty he found in life;
With courage he faced the tempests
That roared on the Road of Strife;
He toiled straight on though nettles

Of stung to the point of tears,
And black-winged, clucking shadows

Brought out their broods of fears!
He plodded without complaining;
He met each day with a smile;
He helped, with a cheerful spirit,
The ways of woe to beguile;
He tried, in want and in sorrow,
To wipe away care's tears;
He gave of life's shining treasures—
Time's days and months and years!

And when his friends whispered,
"Failure!"
He turned not from his way,
But steadily and true and earnest,
He jogged along each day;
But lo! his duty ended

On a green hill's sun-sweet crest—
Within God's golden garden
A-bloom with Peace and Rest!

—On Sunday, August 26, a most interesting and unusual ceremony was held at 39 Gay street, when a service flag was raised bearing 2 stars, one each for Lewis H. Baker and Brigham Watson (Miss Baker's fiancé) both of whom are enlisted in the 1st Regiment Engineers. The flag made by Mrs. Wallace B. Baker was also raised to the mast head by her as Mr. Lewis H. Baker (former bugler for C Co.) blew Reveille. After the flag was in place the assembled neighbors and friends joined in singing the Star Spangled Banner.

PLAYGROUND NOTES

The summer season of the playgrounds closes today, although some of the playgrounds will have at least one director in charge.

Most of the playgrounds will hold a field day on either Thursday or Friday of this week for the purpose of showing the parents what has been done during the summer months. The Upper Falls, Newton Highlands and Lower Falls Playgrounds will celebrate their field day at Upper Falls on Friday. The Stearns Playground conducted a festival for the benefit of the Stearns, Boyd and Allison Playgrounds on last Saturday. West Newton, Claffin, Cabot, Farlow and Thompsonville will each hold a home field day. Newton Centre had their field day on Thursday of last week. A great deal of interest was aroused by the exhibit of work done by the Red Cross. The Upper Falls Playgrounds also has a notable exhibit of such work, the children having completed 14 large sweaters and a great many dozens of smaller articles for the Red Cross.

Folk dancing was particularly successful this year on account of the fact that each playground is now equipped with a first class graphophone and a fine set of records.

The bath house at Allison Playground has been completed and will be turned over for public use on the coming Friday.

The Newton Highlands sanitary building will be completed probably next week.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Unquestionably one of the smartest, brightest, jolliest and most tuneful musical comedies seen here in a decade is Henry W. Savage's latest offering, "Have a Heart", now at the Colonial Theatre, Boston. Produced last season in New York, at the Liberty Theatre, it proved one of the biggest hits of the year. And here it's success seems limited only by the capacity of the Colonial, for crowded houses have made noticeable every performance so far. The merry story of "Have a Heart" is attuned to the heart throbs of a honeymooning couple who decide to get a divorce, all on account of hubby's sympathy for the poor working girl. They don't get a divorce, but they do get into all sorts of laughable entanglements. From the lingerie department of a big store, the story briskly and humorously skips to the lobby of a summer hotel, where happenings of the most novel and amusing sort. In the company of seventy are such popular entertainers as Flora Zabelle, Helena Gunther, Katherine Galloway, Billy Kent, Irving Beebe, and Donald MacDonald. Next Monday "Have a Heart" will commence the final two weeks of its local engagement. The matinee days are Wednesday and Saturday.

PROGRESSIVE SCHOOL

Add New Course and Evening Sessions to Meet War-Time Demands

The serious lack of office help caused by enlistments last spring has been intensified by conscription this fall.

Banks and business houses have been unable to fill the vacancies thus caused, and are looking to the young women to supply the deficiency.

The Bryant & Stratton School, Boston, with characteristic enterprise, is doing its part to relieve the situation by adding a new course—Mechanical Accounting—and opening an evening session.

The Mechanical Accounting Course can be taken in about six months, so that by another Spring the result of both efforts will be available to the business community. The equipment for this course is of the most modern, up-to-date type, and includes calculating, listing, bank bookkeeping and commercial bookkeeping machines. The Evening Session will be appreciated by a large number of ambitious men and women who have a desire to better their condition, but are unable to attend a day school.

effect which could only be defined as dynamic. After our men had become acquainted with them through personal experience they stopped calling them "number nines" and called them "whiz-bangs." There were only two possibilities of error under Major Gilday's system of simplified medicine. One was to take a whiz-bang for trench feet and the other to use whale oil externally for some form of digestive disturbance. And in either case no permanent harm could result, while the error was as simple of correction as the command "about face." Bilgity was therefore not very popular with our battalion, bilgity being the trench name for the hospital.

Two weeks and a half after we left Belgium we arrived at Albert, having marched all the way. The sight which met our eyes as we rounded the rocky hill outside of Albert was wonderful beyond description. I remember how tremendously it impressed my pal, Macfarlane. He sat by the roadside and looked round over the landscape as if he were fascinated. "Boy," said he, "we're at the big show at last."

Poor fellow! It was not only the big show, but the last performance for him. Within sight of the spot where he sat wondering he later fell in action and died. The scene which so impressed him gave us all a feeling of great awe. Great shells from a thousand guns were streaking and criss-crossing the sky. Without glasses I counted thirty-nine of our observation balloons. Away off in the distance I saw one German captive balloon. The other aircraft were uncountable. They were everywhere, apparently in hundreds. There could have been no more wonderful panorama picture of war in its new aspect.

"Boy," said he, "we're at the big show at last."

Our battalion was in and out of the town of Albert several days waiting for orders. The battle of Courcellette was then in progress, and the First, Second and Third Canadian divisions were holding front positions at terrible cost. In the first part of October, 1916, we "went in" opposite the famous Regina trench. The battleground was just miles and miles of debris and shell holes. Before we went to our position the officers and non-coms were taken in by scouts to get the lay of the land. These trips were called "Cook's tours." On one of them I went through the town of Poziers twice and didn't know it. It had a population of 12,000 before the war. On the spot where it had stood not even a whole brick was left, it seemed. Its demolition was complete. That was an example of the condition of the whole country over which our forces had blasted their way for ten miles since the previous July. There were not even landmarks left.

The "Cook's Tour."

On the night when we went in to inspect the positions we were to hold, our scouts, leading us through the flat desert of destruction, got completely turned round and took us back through a trench composed of shell holes connected up until we ran into a battalion of another brigade. The place was dreadful beyond words. The stench of the dead was sickening. In many places arms and legs of dead men stuck out of the trench walls.

We made a fresh start after our blunder, moving in single file and keeping in touch each with the man ahead of him. We stumbled along in the darkness through this awful labyrinth until we ran into some of our own scouts at 2 a. m. and found that we were halfway across No Man's land, several hundred yards beyond our front line and likely to be utterly wiped out in twenty seconds should the Germans sight us. Fine guides we had on this "Cook's tour." At last we reached our proper position, and fifteen minutes after we got there a whiz-bang, a low explosive, murdered, buried me completely. They had to dig me out. A few minutes later a high explosive shell fell in a trench section where three of our men were stationed. All we could find after it exploded were one arm and one leg, which we buried. The trenches were without trench mats, and the mud was from six inches to three feet deep all through them. There were no dugouts, only merely miserable "funk holes," dug where it was possible to dig them without uncovering dead men. We remained in this position four days, from the 17th to the 21st of October, 1916.

There were reasons, of course, for the difference between conditions in Belgium and on the Somme. On the Somme we were constantly preparing for a new advance, and we were only temporarily established on ground which we had but recently taken after long drumming with big guns. The trenches were merely shell holes connected by ditches. Our old and ubiquitous and variously useful friend, the sandbag, was not present in any capacity, and therefore we had no parapets or dugouts. The communication trenches were all blown in, and everything had to come to us overland, with the result that we never were quite sure when we would get ammunition, rations or relief forces. The most awful thing was that the soil all about us was filled with freshly buried men. If we undertook to cut a trench or enlarge a funk hole our spades struck into human flesh and the explosion of a big shell along our line sent decomposed and dismembered and sickening mementoes of an earlier fight showering among us. We lived in the muck and stench of "glorious" war, those of us who lived.

The German Dugout—and What They Found.

Here and there along this line were the abandoned dugouts of the Germans, and we made what use of them we could, but that was little. I had orders one day to locate a dugout and prepare it for use as a battalion headquarters. When I led a squad in to clean it up the odor was so overpowering that we had to put on our gas masks. On entering we first saw two dead nurses with our ghastly flashlights, one standing with her arm around a post, just as she had stood when gas or concussion killed her. Seated at a table in the middle of the place was the body of an old general of the German medical corps, his head fallen between his hands. The task of cleaning up was too dreadful for us. We just tossed in four or five fumite bombs and beat it out of there. A few hours later we went into the seared and empty cavern, made the roof safe with new timbers and notified battalion headquarters that the place could be occupied.

During this time I witnessed a scene which, with some others, I shall never forget. An old chaplain of the Canadian forces came to our trench section seeking the grave of his son, which had been marked for him on a rude map by an officer who had seen the young man's burial. We managed to find the spot, and at the old chaplain's request we exhumed the body. Some of us suggested to him that he give us the identification marks and retire out of range of the shells which were bursting all around us. We argued that it was unwise for him to remain in danger, but what we really intended was that he should be saved the horror of seeing the pitiful thing which our spades were about to uncover.

"I shall remain," was all he said. "He was my boy."

It proved that we had found the right boy. One of our men tried to clear the features with his handkerchief, but ended by spreading the handkerchief over the face. The old chaplain stood beside the body and removed his trench helmet, baring his gray head to a drizzle of rain that was falling. Then while we stood by silently his voice rose amid the noise of bursting shells, repeating the burial service of the Church of England. I have never been so impressed by anything in my life as by that scene.

The dead man was a young captain. He had been married to a lady of Baltimore just before the outbreak of the war.

The philosophy of the British Tommies and the Canadians and the Aus-

His Voice Rose Amid the Noise of Bursting Shells.

trallians on the Somme was a remarkable reflection of their fine courage through all that hell. They went about their work paying no attention to the dying death about them.

"If Fritz has a shell with your name and number on it," said a British Tommy to me one day, "you're going to get it, whether you're in the front line or seven miles back; if he hasn't, you're all right."

Fine fighters all. And the Scotch kilties, lovingly called by the Germans "the women from hell," have the respect of all armies. We saw little of the politics, except a few on leave. All the men are self sacrificing to one another in that big melting pot from which so few ever emerge whole. The only things it is legitimate to steal in the code of the trenches are rum and "fags" (cigarettes). Every other possession is as safe as if it were a patent lock.

The fifth article of this remarkable personal narrative will appear soon. It is entitled:

No. 5.—Wounded in Action.

This article describes the terrible fight the dead and dying, the loss of a pal and the final falling of McClintock in No Man's Land. Simply told, it is one of the most remarkable descriptions of a battle by a participant ever put together.

Their need for warm clothing will be great. In order that our supplies may be fairly and equally distributed it is obviously necessary that they be distributed through a central agency. The Bureau of Military Relief has been organized to attend to this important feature. It will make every effort to avoid duplications in giving, by sending goods out only on requisition from the proper officers in the Army or Navy. Its attempt at equal distribution will be nullified if the local chapters and branches give directly to individuals or to transient troops in their locality. It is natural to expect that local chapters and branches may want to provide for the men from their districts first, but you are urged to impress upon the members of your chapter the necessity of sending all finished articles to the Supply Service store house, of the Northeastern Division, at 142 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass. By so doing you may be sure the supplies will be used where most needed and that no individual will receive more than his share. A Field Director representing the Red Cross, will be continually at the Ayer Camp. There is, at present, a Field Director for Naval Base No. 1, including the Boston district and also a Field Director for Naval Base No. 2, comprising the Narragansett Bay district. It is the duty of these Field Directors to cooperate with the quartermasters and commanding officers of the troops in their districts, in the requisitioning and distribution of Red Cross supplies.

To the Newton artists who are already at work on Red Cross posters or who have sent in designs the Red Cross is very grateful but it can use many more designs than it has and those who wish boards on which to make them may obtain them at the Red Cross Headquarters at the Newton Club or at the Red Cross Work Room in the Masonic Building in Newtonville Square.

There is still no end of work to be done at the Work Room of the Red Cross in the Masonic Building, Newtonville. Women who are willing to help will be welcomed and a competent instructor will be ready to instruct those who are new at the work. The Room is open and busy every day from ten to one except Saturdays and Sundays.

The Newton Centre members of the Newton Branch of the Red Cross are to have for their use the house at 1288 Centre street, the Melvin Bray estate having given its use to the Red Cross for the duration of the war. The house is situated most conveniently being within easy reach of the street car lines and of the Boston & Albany Newton Centre station. Work has been begun to make the house ready for its future uses and it is expected that the Red Cross will be able to open the work rooms in it within a fortnight. For furnishing the house the Red Cross members hope to have contributions of chairs, tables and chests of drawers from Newton Centre people who have them to spare and who will be willing to help the Red Cross work along by giving them to the Order. As soon as the house is ready for use the Newton Centre members of the Red Cross will be glad to welcome all the women of the village who are willing to volunteer to make surgical dressings, bandages and do other necessary work.

RECEPTION

Members of the Norman Prince Camp of the Signal Corps were tendered an informal reception on Thursday evening in Bray Hall, Newton Centre.

The delightful affair was arranged by the ladies of Newton Centre, interest being created by a very interesting account of the camp which was given by Rev. Harmon Page, the chaplain, on last Sunday at Trinity Church.

The Newton Centre Constabulary and Lieutenant Baird were present in uniform and acted as hosts, and Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Church presided. Rev. J. F. Haney, assistant rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Newton Centre, was also present, and other clergymen who were invited were unable to attend as they were out of town.

An entertaining musical program was presented which included piano selections by Miss Dai Buell and an orchestra of four pieces was also in attendance.

One of the most interesting features was furnished by the soldiers, who performed some very skillful athletic feats, and furnished some very fine solo and chorus singing.

Mr. Earl Weidner, one of the organists at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, was accompanist and assisted in the program.

Two Grand Army men, Mr. C. C. Patten, and Mr. S. A. Walker, were present in uniform, and were given a royal reception by the boys in khaki. There were about 400 present including the officers and members of the Newton Centre Home Guard and the people of Newton Centre. Special cars were provided to convey the soldiers to the hall and to return them to their armory on Commonwealth avenue.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS

The Associate Members of the former Ninth Regiment are raising a fund for the 101st Regiment and have sent out the following letter which appeals to Newton people since our Newton company has become a part of the 101st.

Dear Sir: It appears very evident that the Ninth Regiment Infantry, N. G., now the 101st U. S. A., is about to move, and probably their destination is to be France, or in other words, the actual firing line. They are going in order that Democracy shall live; that a continuance of our freedom shall be assured. In a word, they are going to fight for us. A braver set of boys never lived, and that they will give an excellent account of themselves we all have confidence. They are leaving their homes, their relatives, and their friends, but they are going in the highest spirits, and with the strongest determination, and an entire willingness to do their duty as American citizens.

That we have a duty toward these boys goes without saying. Our duty is to follow them in whatever way we can, and do for them and their comfort all that we may know how.

In this connection the Executive Committee of the Ninth Regiment, Associate Members feel that we should immediately raise a sum of at least $50,000; $17,000 of which we already have in hand, and we are now appealing to you to make as substantial a contribution to this fund as you feel disposed. Five contributions of $1,000 each have been promised in addition to the $17,000 already in hand.

This money will be spent under the direction of Col. Edward L. Logan, of the old "Fighting Ninth", or what is now the 101st Infantry, U. S. A., and the Executive Committee of the Ninth Regiment, Associate Members.

All contributions should be sent to the Treasurer, Joseph H. O'Neill, President of the Federal Trust Company, 85 Devonshire street, Boston.
